HOW THE NASHVILLE WAS DESTROYED.

STEAMER DELAWARE, IN THE GREAT OGEECHEE RIVER,
BELOW FORT MCALLISTER, Ga.,
Tuesday night, March 3, 1863.

The tidings of the destruction of the pirate-ship Nashville in the Ogeechee River, near Fort McAllister, by the iron-clad Montauk, reached us at Port Royal on Sunday morning—a dispatch-boat having been sent up to Admiral DUPONT by Capt. WORDEN. This inspiriting bit of intelligence gave a decided fillip to the preparations which had been going on for some days to renew, on a more formidable scale, the already twice-tried task of reducing the rebel work on the Ogeechee.

It was wisely judged that, as the Ogeechee presents, on a smaller scale, precisely the same style of defences as those to be encountered whether at Charleston or Savannah—precisely the same kind of obstacles our iron-clads will have to meet when they come to measure their strength against those places—it would be an excellent experiment to let our sea-dogs try their mettle on. The Ogeechee was known to have its sand batteries, its piles and its torpedoes, as well as Charleston Harbor; and the experience we have had against this system of defences, and, indeed, our experience as to the action of the iron-clads any how, was yet too green to throw away the excellent lesson which might here be learnt—it was hoped not at too great a cost. The country anxiously looks forward to the time when our new engines of warfare are to be put to their crucial test against the original home of the secession treason, and I know well how thoroughly Admiral DUPONT feels the necessity of not risking the great result for the lack of any light or practice that can possibly be obtained.

Well, we have, by the operations of to-day, increased that light and enriched that experience by most important additions; and though the result of the bombardment does not include the reduction of Fort McAllister—a possession which, since the destruction of the Nashville, would have been of trivial value, and which, had we obtained it, would simply have been blown up and abandoned—yet the lesson which we have gained by to-day's practice is one which we could not well have spared. I will not conceal from you that there are many points connected with this affair, especially in so far as the iron-clads themselves are concerned, that a sense of duty forbids my making public at the present time. I hasten to add, however, that the result is not such as to inspire fear, but, on the contrary, confidence as to their behavior. And if to-day's experiment has taught us where we may look for vulnerability in the Monitors, it is certainly a subject of congratulation that the lesson has been gained on an issue which involves nothing; and it has also taught us how greatly we may confide in their invulnerability.

For many weeks, as you well know, the iron-clad Montauk, under command of the gallant WORDEN, has been guarding Ossabaw Sound and its affluent, the Ogeeche, where the Nashville had been lurking for eight months past. On Saturday, the iron-clad Patapsco had been sent down from Port Royal, together with three mortar-schooners, towed by the steamer Ericsson. On Sunday they were followed by the Monitor Nahant; and her mate, the Passaic, which had been guarding Wassaw Sound, was also transferred hither. The gunboats Seneca, Wissahickon, and Dawn had also received orders to rendezvous at the same place.

Through the kindness of Gen. T. SEYMOUR, the able and accomplished Chief of Staff of Gen. HUNTER, I received an invitation to go down and witness the expected engagement; and, together with Capt. DUANE, Chief Engineer of the Department of the South, we left Port Royal at noon of Sunday, in the steamer Delaware. Six hours' sail southward, along the low coast of South Carolina and Georgia, brought us to Ossabaw Sound. The fleet had all arrived in advance of us. The presence of the iron-clads, gunboats, mortar-vessels and steamers gave unwonted animation to the scene; and it is very certain that the gorgeous setting sun, which, as we steamed in, wrapped the ships and waters in golden glory, and threw fan-like shoots of flame far out over the Atlantic, never went down on such a spectacle along this Georgia coast before.

You will observe that this part of the coast of Georgia is of that amphibious character which marks so much of the Southern coast in general—the raveled and unfinished ends of nature's web, where sea and land keep up a mutual warfare. The Ocean breaks in between Great Wassaw and Ossabaw islands, forming Ossabaw Sound, and into this estuary flow the Great and the Little Ogeechee and the Vernon rivers, which in turn receive numerous affluents—the whole region forming a labyrinth of islands, creeks and marshes, dear to the blockade-runner.

From the mouth of Ossabaw to the point on the Ogeechee, where Fort McAlister is [illegible], is about seventeen miles. The fleet, [illegible] on our arrival, had pushed four or five miles up the river, but we anchored for the night at its embouchure by the side of Ossabaw Island, where we found the Forty-seventh New-York Volunteers encamped on the sand spit, in a region as desolate as that where ALEXANDER SELKIRK was monarch of all he surveyed. In the morning we passed up and joined the fleet. The iron-clad Passaic lay in the van up the stream, in sign that her Commander, Capt. DRAYTON, was ranking officer of the fleet, and, by consequence, the Commander of the proposed expedition. Rowing on board this vessel, we found out that it would be impossible to go up to the attack that day, the tide not serving for the purpose. Accordingly, we passed to the Montauk hard by, where I spent a most agreeable day with the brave, modest and amiable WORDEN, who, as all the world knows, fought the Monitor in her memorable contest with the Merrimac in Hampton Roads. The left side of his manly and noble face is still begrimed with the powder and flame blown into it on that occasion, and the eye-ball is pitted with grains of the same substance—honorable insignia which he will carry with him as long as he lives.

Of course, his brilliant work of Saturday in destroying the Nashville was the foremost theme of conversation and congratulation. You will, doubtless, before this reaches you, have published an official dispatch from Admiral DUPONT announcing this fact. At the risk of repeating, therefore, I will put down the prominent points of the affair as I got them from the mouth of Capt. WORDEN.

On Friday, the 27th of February, at 3 P. M., the Nashville, stripped for running the blockade, made her appearance to the north of Genesis Point, near which she had been concealed for some days. The commandant of Fort McAllister, as negroes who subsequently came in informed us, seeing the reinforcements that were being sent to Ossabaw, insisted that she should either run out, or run up and be scuttled and sunk in the channel; for, he very logically reasoned, so long as she occupied her present position, she was a standing temptation to the Yankees to come up and assail the fort. The arrival of the Montauk and gunboats, however, put an estoppel on her doing the former, and as soon as the iron-clad came in sight the Nashville steamed up stream, evidently endeavoring to return to her old position near the railroad bridge above. After passing a short distance up, she was observed suddenly to stop. The Seneca immediately went up to reconnoitre and ascertained her to be aground. Captain WORDEN at once determined to destroy her at daylight in the morning—the tide being against him that afternoon. Accordingly at 5:20 A. M., of Saturday, Feb. 28, the Montauk stood up and anchored within one thousand yards of the battery, having the Nashville in sight over the marsh to the north, distant three-fourths of a mile. The Seneca, Wissahickon and Dawn took up position at the bend near Harvey's Cut, and fire was opened on the Nashville by the Montauk at half past six. The fifth shell hit her: at the eighth, fire broke out in her forehold, and at the tenth, she was sufficiently afire to prevent the possibility of its being extinguished. Four more shells were, however, at long intervals fired to make all sure. The Montauk paid no attention to that portion of the battery's fire directed at her, leaving that to the care of the gunboats and devoting herself exclusively to the Nashville. At 8 o'clock firing ceased, owing to a thick fog which had materially interfered with aiming all the morning. The shell practice had been too fatally accurate, however; and at 9 o'clock the Nashville blew up. Two separate explosions took place—one of the boiler, the other of the magazine. The officers who were witnesses to the spectacle are unanimous in their testimony as to its magnificence. And one can readily believe that as the infamous craft which burned the Harvey Birch and for months preyed on our commerce, defying all the power of our navy to catch her—as was seen athwart the shroud of mist blown hundreds of feet into the air and spreading in a huge parachute of timber and cotton-bales, and flame and smoke, it was a scene pleasant to the eye of gods and men. The sentiment of New-York will doubtless rate the value of this achievment quite as highly as we do here; and from whichever point of view we regard it—whether as ridding the seas of a dangerous enemy to our commerce, or as putting out of the way what might have been a formidable "fire in the rear," when prospective operations, requiring the undivided energy of the whole naval force, shall come to be inaugurated—it is a consummation for which we should be devoutly thankful. Contrabands, who afterwards came in, confirmed what has been stated in regard to the Nashville, and added that she had on board five hundred bales of cotton, and that her armament as a privateer was one 100-pounder Armstrong rifle, and two long 32-pounders. The excellent morning's work being accomplished, the Montauk and gunboats dropped down to their old anchorage at Hell Gate, near the mouth of the Ogeechee.

> "That fatal and perfidious bark,
> Built i' the eclipse, and rigged with curses dark,"

To return, now, to the record of our own operations. The land, or rather the marsh on each side of the Ogeechee, is almost à fleur d'eau, certainly hardly rising a foot above the level of the river, while at times it is entirely submerged. For miles and miles on every hand there is nothing to be seen but these perfectly flat and level islands and islets, covered with reeds and rank grasses—save where a lustier vegetation has pushed up in occasional clumps of trees, called "hummocks." Half-a-dozen miles above where we lay at anchor all Monday the river juts out in a promontory, named Genesis Point, covered by one of these hummocks of more than ordinary size;—behind this, hidden from the eye, is Fort McAlister, the smoke of the wreck of the Nashville still rising hard by. Off to the right, we see a column of smoke rising athwart the sky;—that is, we guess, from the rebel ram Fingal, which lies in Washington River, waiting her chances. Further up near the site of Thunderbolt battery is a huge sheet of smoke going up all the day;—the rebels are burning the wood and underbrush for some purpose of their own.

With the first early light of this morning, (Tuesday,) the fleet of iron-clads, gunboats and mortar-schooners, passed up the river, cautiously feeling their way for fear of torpedoes. The Monitors took up their position on the upper curve of the river which rounds the neck on which Fort McAlister is located; the mortar-boats and gunboats on the lower curve. Foremost was the Passaic, (Capt. DRAYTON,) next the (Nahant, (Capt. DOWNES,) then the Patapsco, (Capt. AMMEN)—the foremost having a range from the fort of about nineteen hundred yards; the hindmost twenty-one hundred; while the mortar-schooners and gunboats stood off at a distance of about two and a half miles. To the Montauk no rôle was assigned. Admiral DUPONT, thinking she had "seen enough of action and of motion, she," ordered that she should take no active part in the operations. Capt. WORDEN, however, took her up, and laid her alongside the mortar-boats, where, to use his own expression, he had come to "cock up his feet and look on at the fun."

Just as our steamer, which had not left her anchorage below for some hours after the fleet, reached the mortar-schooners, the ball opened by a shell from Fort McAlister. It was just 9 o'clock. The first shot, the opening of an engagement, is always an exciting moment, and all eyes were directed eagerly to the fort, to the ship, and to where the shell—speeding, viewless, through its parabolic trajectory (it and the white-bellied sea-gulls the only winged things in that desolate scene,) would fall. It was short of its mark, and splashed into the river, sending up a huge column of water and spray, which caught by the enfilading beams of the morning sun, was colored with the prismatic hues of the rainbow. Another and another shot is fired from the fort, with no reply from the iron-clads. They are getting into position. Suddenly the turret of the Passaic revolves; the ports open and out issues a volume of flame and smoke, then another, and the two huge guns (respectively eleven and fifteen inches in diameter) vomit forth their terrible missiles. The others presently follow, the mortars join in and the engagement is fairly begun.

There is little field for pure description in such an engagement. The novelty and the scientific interest which attach to the new engine of warfare, serve to keep the attention awake, but for the rest, there is little that is picturesque in this style of fighting—the one party encased within impenetrable iron, the other intrenched behind equally impenetrable sand. I fear all the old fire and animation of naval fights—where ships fight yard-arm to yard-arm, and human nature in its most exalted energizing appears—is gone; it is simply now a matter of mechanism and mathematics, with its own poetry, no doubt, but lacking in all the old traditions and glories.

It was now simply a matter of watching the varying effect of the shot, as they fell short, went over, or struck the fort or ships respectively. Even this, after a while grew tiresome, and all but the more determined of the spectators on our vessel retired to the cabin to smoke, chat or sleep! It is the old story—the most momentous of events uninteresting while in process of transaction. The majority were far more interested in getting as mementoes portions of the "floculent fibre" which came floating down the stream from the Nashville, (the skeleton of which was still plainly in sight,) and was strewn about with a looseness that would have broken the heart of one of your New-York cotton brokers.

Hour after hour the interchange of shots is kept up. Now a shot hits one of the Monitors; now a shell from an iron-clad or mortar-boat plows up the sand of the fort. The rebels, watching the revolution of the turrets, are careful to come out to fire only when the iron-clads have delivered their fire and the turrets are turning away from them. A lucky shot from one of the Monitors falls on the fort and seems to dismount one of the guns, throwing it up in the air—seems to, for we are not quite certain. Another shell is thrown into the encampment back of the fort and sets fire to the tents, but the rebels succeed in putting it out. Later, two or three audacious rebels work their way down to the side of the marsh, out of range of their own shot, and fire with their rifles at the iron-clads—a pleasant piece of impertinence, which is interrupted by a charge of canister thrown in among the tall reeds where they lurk!

At half-past 4 in the afternoon the combat ended, the iron-clads having been anchored under fire for no less than eight hours. No one was hurt on our side, and whether or not any of the rebels were killed it is impossible to say. The embrasures and traverses of the fort, we could see, were badly cut up; and yet it must be owned no damage was done beyond what can be repaired by a hundred negroes in the course of the night. Capt. DRAYTON will, however, keep the mortars busy during the night to bother them all we can. At 5 we dropped down stream, the rebels coming out on the parapets and cheering a defiant adieu.

For our own part, albeit to-day's work has not achieved the reduction of Fort McAlister, there is nothing but encouragement felt at the result. The iron-clads have had their crucial test, and still merit every confidence. From the circumstances of the case, the whole Southern coast does not present a tougher experiment than that which they have successfully stood to-day. You will doubtless receive, through the Charleston and Richmond papers, a report, in the usual rebel style, of our utter discomfiture and their complete triumph. Dismiss it utterly. It is impossible for me at the present moment to enter into the details which would inspire the same confidence we here feel. But believe it fully justified! All that the country looks forward to of operations on this coast, will be carried out, and they will be entered upon with a sense of confidence doubled by the result of to-day's trial on the Ogechee.

THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

The Rebels said to be in Force Between New-Market and Staunton.

From the Washington Republican, Saturday Evening.

Our information, from private and reliable sources, is confirmatory of the announcement made in the Republican some days since, that the rebels are in force in the Shenandoah Valley. We stated that the enemy were menacing Winchester, upon reliable authority. We are now satisfied that the rebels have a very large artillery and cavalry force between New-Market and Staunton.

From private information obtained from within the enemy's lines, we are satisfied that LEE, through the command of some one of his subordinates, is contemplating another raid upon the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Arrival of a Prize Steamer.

The prize steamship (British) Adele, KELLY, from Key West 7th inst., via Hampton Roads 12th, to J. C. CLAPP, United States Marshal, arrived here yesterday. She was captured June 6, off Abaco, by the gunboats Quaker City and Huntsville. She is of iron, with side-wheels, 1,200 tons burden; has double engines, of 300 horse-power each, and was formerly the Earl of Eglinton's steam yacht, and at the time of her capture was in command of WALKER, formerly of the steamship Great Eastern.

IMPORTANT FROM THE MISSISSIPPI.

Movement of Troops Against Vicksburgh.

A CAPITULATION LOOKED FOR.

Reported Capture of Yazoo City and Destruction of the Rebel Fleet.

An Important Rumor Through Gen. Rosecrans.

VICKSBURGH SAID TO BE EVACUATED

CAIRO, Saturday, March 14.

Advices from Memphis are received to Thursday evening.

An important movement of troops is taking place below.

Look out for important results soon.

Yazoo pass is likely to give us an advantage not heretofore appreciated.

Officers just from Vicksburgh say the stronghold must soon capitulate or do worse.

CINCINNATI, Saturday, March 14.

The Gazette has a Memphis dispatch which says that a report was in circulation that Admiral PORTER had received information that the Yazoo Pass expedition had captured Yazoo City, and destroyed the rebel fleet.

Another special from Memphis says that Admiral PORTER is momentarily expecting intelligence from Haines' Bluff, announcing the arrival of our forces there, which would be the signal for a combined attack upon that fortification.

CINCINNATI, Sunday, March 15.

The Commercial's letters from Vicksburgh report all quiet. The river is very high, and the back water had broken through the levee, filling the canal and rendering work upon it impossible.

The river at Memphis was within 14 inches of high-water mark, and rising 2 to 3 inches per day.

CHICAGO, Saturday, March 14.

A special Memphis dispatch, of the 11th, says that Gen. QUIMBY's Division, which was forced to return from Young's Point on account of high water, stopped at Yazoo Pass, and has probably gone to reinforce that expedition, which is said to have passed Yazoo City and captured the fleet of rebel transports that have rendezvoused there for a long time.

REPORTED EVACUATION OF VICKSBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, March 14.

A telegram from Gen. ROSECRANS states that, according to a report which had reached him, the rebels had evacuated Vicksburgh. Information had previously been received here that they were removing their stores and war materials from Vicksburgh into the interior. Nothing however is officially known so as to speak with certainty.

OUR MISSISSIPPI CORRESPONDENCE.

Progress of the Lake Providence Canal—Arrival of the Gunboat Lafayette—Col. Murphy Commanding the Carondelet—The Want of More Sailors—Clothing for Warm Weather—Admiral Porter's Imitation Monitor—Cotton Captures.

NEAR VICKSBURGH, Miss.,
Wednesday, March 4, 1863.

The work on the Lake Providence canal progresses favorably. Its successful completion will be of incalculable advantage to the programme of Admiral PORTER and Gen. MCCLERNAND.

The Lafayette arrived yesterday and anchored with the rest of the gunboat fleet in the Yazoo. She is a powerful vessel, and runs with great speed. High expectations are entertained of what she is to accomplish in the grand programme about to be inaugurated here. She has a most powerful battery, an effective crew of officers and men, most of them experienced men, who have seen service on board of Atlantic ships-of-war; besides which she has a large detail of sharpshooters from an Illinois regiment—the One Hundred and First, I believe—to repel boarders from the spar-deck. Some important changes will be made by the Admiral, to add, if possible, to her effectiveness as a fighting vessel.

Col. J. MCLEOD MURPHY has been given the command of the Carondolet. His reception by the Admiral was very cordial. He brings with him some excellent officers, one of the best of whom is Ensign BRYANT, an old and experienced man-of-war's man, who has been of great value to the service, particularly in drilling the men at the heavy guns.

There is here a grand field for officers and men, practical hard-handed, horse-sense individuals, in this Western flotilla. If the merchants of New-York, and other Eastern cities, could estimate the priceless value to be attached to the operations of Admiral Porter, they would not lose a day before they would unite to send him one or two thousand good men. Everything depends upon it.

Can there not be a concerted effort to enroll and send out here the oystermen, boatmen, fishermen, stevedores, longshore-men, laborers, sailors, &c., which he so much needs successfully to carry out the great and important work he has in hand? Mere professional men are not what he wants, but hardy, handy, common-sense men, who can turn their hand to anything required in the extended details of a grand naval expedition. Many of the men at present manning the vessels of the fleet have been enlisted as soldiers, and claim that their terms of enlistment have expired under an agreement made with them by Gen. HALLECK. However this may be, more men are needed, and must be had, and that, too, as soon as possible.

Another thing should be borne in mind. Warm weather is close upon us, and the troops, as well as the naval part of the Mississippi expedition, will soon need clothing adapted to the climate. They will never be able to do effective service in the heavy woolen garments which have been issued to them for use in colder climates. I predict that by the time or before you receive this letter, we shall have possession of Vicksburgh, and the whole rebel garrison will either be captured, or will have emigrated to the State of Alabama, changing their base of operations to the Tombigbee and Alabama Rivers.

You have doubtless heard, before now, of the clever ruse that was practiced upon the rebels, a few nights since, for the purpose of drawing the fire, and thus ascertaining the location, of some new batteries at Vicksburgh. An imitation Monitor was constructed, and set adrift in the night, to float down with the current. There was just moonlight enough for the mysterious craft to be seen, coming slowly through the channel-way. There was the low hull, the turret, the open ports, the flagstaff and other fixings, to personate that "cheese-box on a raft." The whole rebel garrison beat to quarters, including the newly-planted batteries, and a general fire was opened upon the harmless craft from all the rebel positions. Not a shot was returned, but still she floated—"grand, gloomy and peculiar"—through the moonlit haze, like a spectral ship, passing apparently unscathed through the dreadful ordeal. As she came slowly along in range, one after the other of the hundreds of heavy guns poured a "deadly fire" into her inanimate hull, making the splinters fly, and doing terrible execution. There was evidently great excitement along the whole rebel line of works, great emulation to make the best shots, and a great waste of secesh powder and ball. The effigy finally drifted into the eddy opposite to the town and grounded, when our soldiers poled her off, and sent her once more careering up and down, where she continued to sail all night, a target for the enemy's batteries. The mortification of the rebels upon discovering the Yankee imposition which had been practiced upon them may be imagined. There was a great amount of fun in the Union camp and on board the gunboats, among those who were in the secret. The object aimed at was accomplished, and it is reported that another object, unintended, was also effected by the ruse. The rebels, we hear, were so terrified at the approach of the dreadful apparition, that they blew up the Indianola which they had captured a day or two before, and which they were attempting to raise. If this be so, our mock Monitor has achieved a victory as great as that achieved by the great original Monitor No. 1 a year ago.

By way off offset for the loss of our two vessels lately, Admiral PORTER has captured about half a million dollars' worth of cotton. If the Department will let him have his way, and give him the men and other auxiliaries which he requires, he will no doubt pay the whole expense of the operations upon the Mississippi from the cotton and other legal prize property which he will capture.

The Loss of the Indianola—Her Subsequent Destruction—Good Effect of the Dummy Gunboat—Gen. Grant, &c.

NEAR VICKSBURGH, Saturday, March 7, 1863.

We are every day receiving some additional facts or statements, more or less true, concerning the late transactions below. Touching the loss of the Indianola, it is now stated that she was lying near New-Carthage and Island No. 370, which is opposite to Col. JOE DAVIS' and JEFF. DAVIS' Mississippi Plantation, when attacked. That she had two coal barges alongside taking in coal; that a colored man came up opposite to where the steamer was lying, and informed Capt. BROWN that the Webb and the Queen of the West were coming to attack him; to which he replied, "let 'em come," and made no preparations to meet the assault until the enemy's vessels were within short range. That he then made the best defence he could, but the failure to avail himself of the information brought to him of the approach of the rebel rams, and to get his vessel in trim for action, was probably the fatal mistake. Three negroes belonging to the crew, expecting instant death at the hands of the rebels, jumped overboard in the confusion of the surrender, and swam ashore, one on the Mississippi, and two on the Louisiana side of the river. The following day, or two days after the disaster, they reached Admiral PORTER's flagship, and reported the particulars of the capture of the Indianola, and of her having been sunk.

It is now currently reported that on the night that the Admiral sent his famous dummy gunboat down the river, the rebels were employed in trying to raise the Indianola, and get her in working order under the rebel flag. That the Queen of the West, meantime, was sent up toward Vicksbnrgh in order to watch against the approach of any Union gunboats. Seeing the mysterious craft approaching, and the Vicksburgh batteries in full play upon her, the rebel ram hastened down the river as fast as possible, and reported that a Yankee Monitor had run the blockade, and was coming down upon them. This intelligence so alarmed the captors of the Indianola, it is said, that they at once abandoned all further attempts to raise the steamer, and blew her up. This is the current story now in circulation here, and it is pretty generally believed. As there is a great variety of rumors afloat, however, it is difficult to believe anything except upon irrefragible testimony.

During the last two days the rebels have fired upon our canal party from time to time, without doing material damage.

On Wednesday Maj.-Gen. GRANT, in his steamer, visited the Admiral's flagship, and also went on board the new gunboat Lafayette. He returned highly gratified with his visit, and expressing great confidence in the effectiveness of the great ram.

I hear nothing definite from the fleet which went up the Yazoo Pass.

DE SOTO.

DESTRUCTION OF THE INDIANOLA.

An Official Confirmation from Admiral Porter.

U. S. MISSISSIPPI SQUADRON, YAZOO RIVER,
March 10, via Memphis and Louisville, 13th.

Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy:

I have been pretty well assured for some time past that the Indianola had been blown up, in consequence of the appearance of a wooden imitation mortar, which the enemy sunk with their batteries. The mortar was a valuable aid to us. It forced away the Queen of the West, and caused the blowing up of the Indianola.

The following is an account of the affair, taken from the Vicksburgh Whig of the 5th inst.:

DESTRUCTION OF THE INDIANOLA.—We stated a day or two since that we would not enlighten our readers in regard to a matter which was puzzling them very much. We alluded to the loss of the gunboat Indianola, recently captured from the enemy. We were loth to acknowledge she had been destroyed, but such is the case.

The Yankee barge sent down the river last week was reported to be an iron-clad gunboat. The authorities thinking that this monster would retake the Indianola, immediately issued an order to blow her up. The order was sent down by courier to the officer in charge of the vessel.

A few hours afterwards another order was sent down countermanding the first, it being ascertained that the monstrous craft was only a coal boat; but before it reached the Indianola, she had been blown to atoms—not even a gun was saved. Who is to blame for this folly—this precipitancy?

It would really seem as if we had no use for gunboats on the Mississippi, as a coal barge is magnified into a monster, and our authorities immediately order a boat that would have been worth a small army thus to be blown up.

D. D. PORTER,
Act'g Rear Adm'l, Com'g Miss. Squadron.

Admiral Porter's Mock Monitor.

AN ENTERTAINING ACCOUNT OF HER EXPLOITS WRITTEN BY THE ADMIRAL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Friday Evening, March 13, 1863.

The following interesting account of the exploits of the mock Monitor, is from a private letter written to a gentleman of this city, by Acting Rear-Admiral DAVID D. PORTER, commanding the Mississippi Squadron. It will be found to be very entertaining:

U. S. MISSISSIPPI SQUADRON,
YAZOO RIVER, Thursday, Feb. 26, 1863.

MY DEAR ——: We are all in quite a state of excitement here, in consequence of the appearance of the ram Queen of the West at Warrenton, seven miles below Vicksburgh, with the rebel flag flying. She was discovered early yesterday morning lying there with steam up, ready for a start. The account I received from Commodore ELLET led me to believe that she was in such a condition that she could not be repaired for some time; you may judge of my surprise, then, when told she was near Vicksburgh. I always thought that the ram crew skedaddled without any necessity, and now I am pretty well convinced of it; at all events, they spoiled a very important operation—holding possession of the Mississippi River between Vicksburgh and Port Hudson, and cutting off all supplies. The rebels had only one vessel on the whole river; that was the Webb, a worn-out, leaking vessel, and not in any way to be feared; hence we should have had things all our own way. There were on the way and past Vicksburgh twelve good guns, such as they have not got in all "rebeldom"—at least in this part of it—and three vessels; one, it is true, was an old ferry-boat that we had captured, but she had a gun on, and would have answered to protect the coal barges, while the other two cruised together. Well, all that was knocked in the head, by the ram getting ashore, through the treachery of the pilot, under a battery.

The prize New Era, and the persons who escaped, were only saved from capture by meeting the Indianola, which vessel made the Webb turn back, and she (the Webb) escaped up Red River. I knew that BROWN could take care of the Webb by himself, but I have no idea that he will be a match for the Queen and Webb both ramming him at the same time. The Indianola is a weak vessel, and the only good thing about her is her battery.

Amid the incidents of war ridiculous things occur, and I must tell you of a little affair that happened here, and has created great mirth on our side, notwithstanding the loss of the Queen. I think the loss of that vessel is worse than the affair of the Galveston squadron. I have scarcely patience to write about it, or to be amused at anything.

During the time of the running the blockade by the Queen of the West and the Indianola, five of the guns in the forts at Vicksburgh were burst and dismounted; therefore it was an object to make the enemy fire as much as possible. I got a mortar in easy range, and opened on that part of the town where there was nothing but army supplies, and soon provoked a fire of four of their heavy batteries. The shell at first fell over the mortar and around it, bursting close to our men, but the range began to grow shorter, until they let us have it all our own way.

Finding that they could not be provoked to fire without an object, I thought of getting up an imitation Monitor. ERICSSON saved the country with an iron one—why could I not save it with a wooden one. An old coal-barge, picked up in the river, was the foundation to build on. It was built of old boards in twelve hours, with pork barrels on top of each other for smoke stacks, and two old canoes for quarter boats; her furnaces were built of mud, and only intended to make black smoke and not steam.

Without knowing that BROWN was in peril, I let loose our Monitor. When it was descried by the dim light of the morn, never did the batteries of Vicksburgh open with such a din; the earth fairly trembled, and the shot flew thick around the devoted Monitor. But she ran safely past all the batteries, though under fire for an hour, and drifted down to the lower mouth of the canal. She was a much better looking vessel than the Indianola.

When it was broad daylight they opened on her again with all the guns they could bring to bear, without a shot hitting her to do any harm, because they did not make her settle in the water, though going in at one side and out at another. She was already full of water. The soldiers of our army shouted and laughed like mad, but the laugh was somewhat against them when they subsequently discovered the Queen of the West lying at the wharf at Warrenton. The question was asked, what had happened to the Indianola? Had the two rams sunk her or captured her in the engagement we heard the night before? The sounds of cannon had receded down the river, which led us to believe that BROWN was chasing the Webb, and that the Queen had got up past him.

One or two soldiers got the Monitor out in the stream again, and let her go down on the ram Queen. All the forts commenced firing and signalling, and as the Monitor approached the Queen she turned tail and ran down river as fast as she could go, the Monitor after her, making all the speed that was given her by a five-knot current. The forts at Warrenton fired bravely and rapidly, but the Monitor did not return the fire with her wooden guns, but proceeded down after the Queen of the West. An hour after this the same heavy firing that we had heard the night before came booming up on the still air.

A rain commenced which defies all efforts to describe, and has been falling ever since, inundating everything around here, and shutting out all sounds excepting the thunders of heaven, which are reverberating all the time, day and night. You can form as good an idea of affairs below as I can. I shall not believe in the safety of the Indianola until I see her.

The firing of the heavy guns may have been a ruse to entice some more of our gunboats down there, but it won't succeed. BROWN may be there and out of coal, and I am afraid to set a coal barge adrift for fear the ram might pick it up and be enabled to cut around with it, for they have a short supply now.

IMPORTANT FROM TENNESSEE.

Twelve Thousand Rebels Threatening Fort Donelson.

OUR FORCES READY FOR THEM.

CAPTURES OF GUERRILLAS.

CAIRO, Ill., Sunday, March 15.

Gen. TUTTLE has received a dispatch from Fort Donelson to-day, which says: "Our Cavalry report 12,000 rebels within 28 miles of Donelson. The country people for miles around are coming to Fort Donelson with various reports. The rebels are reported to be well-armed. Our forces are ready for any emergency."

The steamer Ruth has arrived at Columbus, having on board 200 boxes shipped at St. Louis for parties in Memphis. The boxes were said to contain oranges, but on examination they proved to be full of clothing, quinine, letters, &c., for the rebels.

CINCINNATI, Sunday, March 15.

A Memphis dispatch to the Commercial confirms the reported surprise and capture of a portion of RICHARDSON's guerilla force near Covington, Tenn. Their camp was destroyed.

Gen. LOONEY's camp, at Wesley, was also surprised by Col. LEE, and a large portion of his force captured, together with Gen. LOONEY, Maj. TAUFORD, Capt. BRIGHT and Lieut. WILLIAMS.

NEWS FROM KENTUCKY.

Apprehensions of Another Rebel Invasion.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sunday, March 15.

Apprehensions exist here, in which military circles participate, that a formidable rebel invasion of Kentucky is imminent, with a view to the permanent occupancy of the State.

Collision at Sea.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sunday, March 15.

The Mecklinburgh bark Torguato Tasso, of Bradhelning, bound from New-York for Rotterdam, which was in collision with the ship Isaac Webb, which has arrived at New-York from Liverpool, on the night of the 12th inst., was towed into Newport on Saturday evening by the New-York pilot-boat W. Aspinwall. The bark was cut down to the water at the mizzen chains, had her house stove, her mizzen mast carried away by the deck, her main-topmast and all the fore and main yards but one also carried away, and leaks badly. The crew had abandoned the vessel, but were picked up by the pilot-boat.

AFFAIRS IN ENGLAND.

Mr. Seward on the War—Confidence Revived—Misapprehensions Dissipated—English Incredulity—Hopes of Further Disunion—English Abolitionism—Poland—French Preparations for War—A Negro Army—Marriage of the Prince of Wales—Hopes of Peace.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 28, 1863.

No news from Charleston; no news from Vicksburgh; no news from Tennessee. News from either or all these important places may be on the way. The great event of the week, so far as the war in America has been concerned, is the dispatch of Mr. SEWARD to the American Minister at Paris. The view of the character, progress and success of the war for the restoration of the Union, taken in this remarkable State paper, has produced the greatest astonishment. It had been believed very generally in Europe that the war was unsuccessful—that the National forces had often been defeated—that there were signs of discord, discouragement and disaffection, even among the loyal States. Letters from America speak of opposition to the policy of the Government in New-Jersey, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. There have been rumors of State movements toward Conventions at Louisville and Nashville. We have been told that the armies in the field are weakened by desertion—that the time of large numbers is about to expire—that new volunteers cannot be found, nor conscriptions enforced; that the Government is obliged to call in the aid of negroes, but that these cannot be found in the North, nor relied upon if taken from the South.

These discouraging rumors and representations are all happily contradicted, and I trust, set at rest by the able, authoritative and patriotic dispatch of the American Secretary of State. Europe, and American residents in Europe, are officially informed that the loyal States are united, powerful and prosperous, with abundant resources, and that the war for the subjugation of the rebels has been as successful as any one could expect, and is fast approaching its glorious termination. The great armies of the Union, united and enthusiastic, led by able Generals, have been or are about to be victorious, and the rebellion, reduced to narrow limits, must soon be entirely subdued. If the Government of France and England shall accept of these representations, there will, of course, be no more efforts at mediation, or talk of intervention.

It is, perhaps, too much to expect. Discouraging views of the progress of the war have been taken by so many correspondents of English papers, and by even some portions of the American Press, that there is likely to remain a degree of incredulity. People are much inclined to believe as they wish. The governing classes in England, as a rule, desire the success of the rebellion, and would be glad to see what remains of the Union still further divided. They hail with a joy, they take no trouble to conceal, the imaginary prospect of an independent Confederacy in the Northwest, or the union of all the States upon the Mississippi. They would be glad to see America, too prosperous and too powerful if united, divided into three or four jealous and antagonistic States. Conservatives naturally look to an end of the Republican system, and expect to see military dictatorships, followed by the establishment of monarchies.

With all such tories, reactionists and monarchists, as you may easily suppose, the sanguine and patriotic views of Mr. SEWARD find little favor. They prefer to believe the letters of the London Times and Herald correspondents, and the editorials of the New-York World, Express, and Journal of Commerce. They even quote Mr. GREELEY with favor, when he writes in low spirits. They hail with joy every assertion of State rights. Sentimental Abolitionists, they have more sympathy with a South Carolina planter, than a Northern patriot. They never built one cotton mill, or bought a bale of cotton the less, on account of Slavery. Their own experiment at emancipation in the West Indies disgusted them forever with such enterprises. Their talk is the sheerest cant, and has no practical sincerity. The real Abolitionists of England are the lower classes—the poor and down-trodden, who feel the burden of oppression, and who love to talk about the rights of man, with reference to the negro; but who never dare to speak of their own rights, much less to make any effort to assert or maintain them.

Since all is going on so well in America, Parliament has turned its attention to Poland. The insurrection, which seemed at first so ill-timed and desperate, has grown to enormous dimensions. France is aroused. The Parliament of England demands, with extraordinary unanimity, the interference of the Government in behalf of Poland. Austria, it is thought, is ready to join France and England in the use, at least, of diplomatic intervention. There is an outburst of wrath and scorn against Prussia for aiding Russia against the Poles. The English Princess Royal is married to the Prince of Prussia, but as that gentleman is not very popular, from an ugly habit he is reported to have of kicking his royal lady down stairs, this alliance does not help the matter. If the opinions and feelings of France and England have any weight with the Czar, he must modify his action in his Polish provinces. But there are possible complications not much dwelt upon here. The Polish question, should the Czar refuse counsel, may lead to a great European war. The first step in that war would be France on the Rhine. LEOPOLD of Belgium cannot live many years, and when he dies it is very probable that France will advance her boundaries, and take possession once more of the field of Waterloo. The French are just now building an immense fleet of steam transports, large, strong and powerful, each one capable of carrying a thousand men, with horses and artillery. Forty of these are completed, and there are to be enough to carry an army of 50,000, with all its stores and material. Now, the question is, what can be the destination of this large, costly and powerful fleet of transports? They are not for continental warfare. In Europe they can be of use in transporting troops only to Italy or to England. They mean invasion somewhere. By means of them, a force of fifty thousand men could be landed any day in England or Ireland, and in ten or twelve days in the United States. It may be doubted if any country ever had so formidable a means for aggressive warfare.

Before this reaches you, London will have given a reception to the Princess ALEXANDRA, and the whole nation rejoiced in the marriage of the Prince of Wales. The reception and progress through the city will be immense, but not, I judge, magnificent. The Royal levées are mobs, as bad as the rough crowds of the theatres. The illuminations seem scattered and ineffective. The English have no genius for great, orderly, and splendid demonstrations.

American affairs will be discussed in Parliament next week, unless the news or the lack of news should give the matter further postponement. If we hear that Charleston and Vicksburgh are taken, and the Confederates beaten in Tennessee, there will be no discussion. The end of the war will end the troubles of Lancashire. Unless cotton comes from America, the cotton manufactures of England are doomed. The most sanguine begin to see this, and to look for peace as the only help. Conquer or be conquered, but do not prolong the war.

Selling Liquor on the Sabbath not an Indictable Offence under the Act of 1860—The Recorder's Opinion Sustained.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Sutherland, Ingraham and Clerke.

The People vs. John Osmer.—This was an appeal from the decision of the Recorder that selling liquor on the Sabbath was not an indictable offence.

The Court have rendered the following opinion on the appeal:

By the Court—INGRAHAM, P. J.—The question submitted to us in this case is, whether the violation of the 42d section of the Police act of 1860, which prohibits the public keeping of intoxicating liquors on Sunday, is a misdemeanor.

The statute imposes a penalty of $50 for each offence, to be sued for by the District-Attorney, and does not declare the offence to be a misdemeanor.

It is well settled that where any act is prohibited and a penalty imposed for its violation, and the offence was not criminal before the passage of the statute, no other punishment than the penalty can be imposed, and the provision in the R. S., 3d ed. (5th ed.) p. 980, which makes the violation of a statute containing such prohibitions a misdemeanor, only applies to cases in which no penalty is provided for its violation.

In this act there are provisions as to other violations, in which such offences are declared to be misdemeanors, but no such provision is contained as applicable to their offence.

The only ground on which it is attempted to sustain this indictment is that the police force are directed to enforce this section and to proceed in the manner provided by law for the arrest of offenders.

In the absence of any other enactment relating to this subject, I do not think this sufficient to warrant us in saying that the Legislature intended to make the offender liable both to the penalty and to indictment. I am not in favor of making out crimes by mere inference, and where the penalty imposed is, as in this case, a heavy one for offences of this kind, the Court should require a clear expression of the intent of the Legislature, before they add to that penalty the liability of prosecution for a criminal offence.

As the Legislature in other parts of this act have declared the cases of violations of the act which they intended should be punished criminally, and have omitted any such declaration as to the acts prohibited in this section, the fair presumption is that they did not intend to apply to such acts any other punishment than the penalty.

We concur with the Recorder in his views on this question.

Judgment affirmed.

MONDAY, March 16—A. M.

The Secretary of the Treasury arrived in town on Saturday night, and will probably remain over several days of the present week. His object is understood to be a general conference with our leading financial people in reference to the future Money wants of the public service, rather than to propose any specific or immediate negotiation. The probability, however, is that he is already assured of his abundant ability to command whatever means he may require to carry the Treasury through the remainder of the present fiscal year, terminating on the 30th June—or longer, if he should feel disposed to anticipate the progress and events of the Spring campaign in the South and Southwest. This we do not believe he will do, as there is every fair reason to believe that the results of this campaign will place the credit of the Government on a much higher basis than even its present improved condition.

On Saturday, a rumor, which we had heard in a less definite shape before, became quite current in Wall-street, that an offer for a large sum of United States Funded Stock, bearing 5 or 6 ℘ cent., had been made to the Secretary from the Continent of Europe, at a comparatively low figure in Gold in New-York, or Sterling Money in London, but the equivalent of which in currency would be more than equal to any previous negotiation in this market. We are induced to suppose that there is authority for this statement, though rumor may have placed the sum to be unconditionally taken at the outset of the negotiation, much too high. The total named on Saturday is $100,000,000. But what portion of this, if any, is made contingent upon the success of the resale, or redistribution by the takers of the first installment of say $20,000,000 or $25,000,000 in Europe, is not stated. But in any preliminary arrangement of terms and privileges which might be made, there is reason to believe that, as in the first great negotiation with the Associated Banks of New-York, Philadelphia and Boston, in 1861 the first step will insure the success, to both parties, of the whole movement, besides in this case creating an interest in our Public Stocks abroad which will soon produce its fruits, through a hundred different channels, at home.

It is also intimated that, if Mr. CHASE desires time to deliberate upon the various negotiations, at home or abroad, which have been proposed or suggested to him, the Associated Banks and a number of our private Banking establishments, would probably agree to place $50,000,000 to the credit of the Government in Bank, to be drawn for as required by the public service, at a moderate rate of interest.

The occasion of the Secretary's visit is also improved to discuss the establishment in this City of a Bank of the United States, under the new National Banking act, with a capital sufficient to insure great usefulness to the Treasury, as one of its central depositories, besides commanding, through a wealthy and able direction, the public confidence. The capital named varies from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000.

The Trade and Financial affairs of the past week show much activity. The Import movement is again on a liberal scale, and the Export clearances of Domestic Produce and Gold quite large. The breaking down of the recently powerful combination in Gold Coin, week before last, from 174 to 154 ℘ cent., largely involved an auxiliary speculation in Bills on London, based, of course, upon the contingent shipment of the Gold Coin should it become needful to relieve the market in this way in the event of an explosion, such as we have seen actually occurred. The consequence is that over two millions in Gold Coin, in excess of the customary demand for export, was suddenly shipped off to Europe; relieving the parties to this extent of their high-priced metal, but placing the loss in another shape to account of the same speculation. We understand that Bills on London, previously contracted for, were delivered on Saturday at 190@191 ℘ cent., the actual currency being 175 ℘ cent. It being known to some of the disappointed speculators referred to, that these extra shipments would certainly be forced, an effort was made early in the week, before the Africa sailed with $1,300,000, to rally the market to something like previous rates, but this soon broke down, after reaching, for a brief hour, 162@163 ℘ cent. Again, in anticipation of the supposed effort on the Street of the large shipment of Saturday, the price was run up to 161 ℘ cent., but as suddenly fell back to 158, and the last effort of all was on Saturday to call in buyer's options to make Gold exceedingly scarce for delivery. The result was heavy sales for cash by wealthy outside parties; one Broker alone disposing of $600,000 or $700,000, for delivery at once or on Monday.

If the ring of desperate speculators against the Public Credit, between Washington and New-York, who have been thus disappointed in their game of reaching two for one, are not yet relieved of their burden of Gold Coin, minus 15 or 20 ℘ cent., the general wish would no doubt be that a few more heavy shipments should be forced off to cover their retreat. The Gold will do the country no harm in Europe. It is not wanted here, at present, and its export will serve the respectable purpose, at least, of strengthening American balances abroad. It has been playing a less creditable part, of late, at home, through figuring every Tuesday morning, in the meretricious statements of the Park and a few other Banks that hold the bag for this extraordinary speculation.

The movement of the market for Money through the week was quite easy; large sums, not otherwise employed, passed into Treasury Certificates bearing 6 ℘ cent., while a further active demand was experienced for United States Stocks, partly from abroad. The Share market was also fairly active, and, on some descriptions, higher than at the close of the previous week. The additional rise on Pacific Mail is 15 ℘ cent., while the short contracts in it continue to multiply far more rapidly than the sales by actual holders. The concern is now approaching the close of its financial year, one of the most successful in its history, and the regular quarterly dividend of 5 ℘ cent. in May, may, we understand, be accompanied by an extra dividend of 10 ℘ cent. The net profits of the year are believed by the new buyers to promise much nearer 40 than 20 ℘ cent.

The price of Gold Coin left off on Saturday at 157⅞, the week closing on a dull demand, after the shipment of $3,540,000, heretofore held in the market for speculation or export at much higher rates, and an attempt on Saturday, on these heavy shipments, to make Gold scarce for delivery on three-day speculative contracts. The Stock Market was less firm than on Friday on the Share-list. Governments steady. At 4 o'clock the market was quoted as follows:

BOOTS AND SHOES—The demand is increasing, especially from distant markets, and prices are well supported. The nearly and local jobbing trade are purchasing rather sparingly, as yet. The Boston Commercial Bulletin, of this morning, says: "The market for Boots and Shoes, owing to the limited supply and pressing demand, is quite unaffected by the fluctuations in gold. All seasonable goods are firm, and selling at full prices. Buyers are anxious to secure stocks; trade is more active than at the same period last year, and must steadily improve as the season advances. Manufacturers have generally sold up close, and have a ready cash market for all the work they can turn out."

COAL—Has been quiet at previous prices. The Philadelphia Inquirer says: "There is very little demand for shipment, and the opening prices have not yet been fixed. The tolls by the Schuylkill Canal have been fixed at 73c. from Port Carbon to Philadelphia, and 70c. from Schuylkill Haven, but the rates by railroad have not yet been promulgated."

GRAIN—Wheat has been lightly dealt in, to-day, and prices have favored buyers. Sales have been reported of 23,000 bushels, including Amber Western, at $1 77@$1 79; Red do. at $1 72@$1 76; Amber Iowa and Wisconsin at $1 67@$1 69; Milwaukee Club at $1 55@$1 66; Chicago Spring at $1 40@$1 60; and Amber Jersey, at $1 80@$1 84 ℘ bush. Corn is heavy and lower. Sales have been reported, since our last, of 35,000 bushels, at 91½c.@93c., in store and delivered, for shipping Mixed Western; 89c.@91c. for Eastern do; 82c.@86c. for Unsound, and 96c. for Yellow Western, ℘ bush. HIDES—Have been in less demand at drooping prices. Messrs. WEITZEL & WEIDEMEYER notice the week's business thus: "Dry Hides—Prime Hides are somewhat neglected by the trade, but common are in fair demand at unchanged prices. About 12,000 Rio Grandes were purchased on speculation at 30c., cash. Dry Salted Hides—A shipment of 4,000 Pernambucos was sold to a Pennsylvania tanner at 21c., cash, and 600 Savanillas were sold at a secret price. The inquiry has been languid for Hides of this description. Upper Leather Hides are in good request. We learn of only few shipments of prime Kip Hides, due this season from foreign ports. Wet Salted Hides—Late arrivals include about 4,000 Californias, which are still afloat. Our market remains bare of foreign kinds. East India Hides—Our market is quiet, which is partially owing to want of desirable stock. The receipts amount to 36,128 Hides. Sales amount to 33,700 Hides. Stock in importers' and speculators' hands, 221,100 Dry Hides, 5,000 Wet Salted do."

SKINS—Have been scarce and very firm, but inactive.

SUGARS—Were very quiet; sales having been confined to 350 hhds., including New-Orleans, at 10½c.@13½c., and Cuba, at 10¾c. ℘ ℔.

The reported sales include 175,000 ℔s. domestic fleece at 87½c.@$1; 25,000 ℔s. do. pulled at 85c.@95c.; 300 bales California at from 50c.@75c., according to grade and condition; 475 bales Cape &c., 47½c.@50c.; 530 bales Mestiza at 37½c.@42½c.; 150 bales African, 270 bales Smyrna, 200 bales Donskai, 75 bales Eentre Rios and 40 bales Rio Grande on private terms; and small lots of Cordova at 60c.@62c.; also by auction, 50 bales sound Cape at 43c.@44c.; 507 bales damaged do., at 18c.@42½c.; and 23,370 ℔s. do. do. (loose) at 13c.@16c. ℘ ℔. Messrs. DIKE Bros., exhibited, during the week, 5,000 ℔s. of pure Saxony Fleece—from a single flock, owned in Harrison Co. Ohio, said to be the finest lot of Wool which has been seen in this market for many years. The quoted price was $1 25 ℘ ℔., which was considered a comparatively low figure, for such splendid Wool. In Boston, according to the Commercial Bulletin, of this morning, "the sales of the week have been 400,000 ℔s., and we quote New-York and Michigan—of which the principal part of the stocks consist—at 85c.@90c. for super extra qualities; Pennsylvania and Ohio at 90c.@95c. for the same grades. A few very choice lots of fine tub-washed fleece, selected for the manufacture of new styles fancy cassimeres, were sold last week as high as $1@$1 05, but the sales at these latter rates have been very exceptional and limited. The transactions in foreign have been light, comprising some 1,500 bales South American, Mediterranean and Cape, at 47c.@50c. for the last mentioned. The fluctuations in gold within the past week have produced a calm, in the Wool market, and speculative operations have been entirely suspended. Holders, however, continue very firm, and prices have undergone no material change. Indeed, notwithstanding the present quiescent state of the market, any extensive movement, such as would probably result from another rise in gold, would undoubtedly cause an advance in current quotations. The present demand is wholly for consumption, and manufacturers are operating to a fair extent. There is a scarcity of the finer grades domestic, especially of Pulled, which now commands about the same rates as Fleece, owing to the reluctance of Wool growers, during the past Winter, to slaughter any portion of their stock for the provision market. There is also a better feeling in the coarser grades than for some time past, on account of the late demand which has sprung up for Army Kersey's to fill Government orders. This is about the first symptom of animation in army Wools since last Fall, when they were very active and high, while other descriptions were comparatively neglected. Considerable lots of fine fleece, of last year's clip, then taken by outside parties at about 60c., have proved a profitable investment, and after having changed hands, at a material advance, some four or five times since, still remain undisturbed in the warehouses where they were stored in September. The new clip will not appear in the market till about the 1st of July, and considering the many disturbing elements and the liability of fluctuations of the market, it is altogether useless to conjecture what may be the ruling rates at that time. Regular dealers are not disposed to make contracts in advance, but some country speculators have bought up lots on the sheeps' back at quite a moderate figure as gold premiums now rule,—payable in hard currency—which may or may not prove a profitable transaction. As a general thing, however, stock-growers are very exalted in their views, and look for extreme rates the coming season, as it is thought desirable stocks, three months hence, will be much reduced." .... In Philadelphia, sales have been made of 60,000 ℔s. domestic fleece, at 95c.@$1; some warranted do. do. at 70c.; and 25,000 ℔s. Cordova, at 60 cts. ℘ ℔.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The intelligence from our forces operating on the Mississippi is important, though not so definite as we could desire. A dispatch from Cairo brings us advices from Memphis to Thursday evening. A movement of troops was taking place below, from which important results were expected immediately. It was believed that Vicksburgh must soon capitulate or suffer a worse fate. The Yazoo Pass operations appear to have given us some great advantage, of which we have as yet hardly more than a hint. One dispatch states that Admiral PORTER has received information that the Expedition had captured Yazoo City, and destroyed the rebel fleet known to be there. Another dispatch states that the Admiral was momentarily expecting intelligence from Haines' Bluff that our forces had arrived there from above—which would be the signal for a combined attack upon the rebel fortifications there. Meantime an official dispatch from another source lends a new aspect to affairs on the Mississippi. Gen. ROSECRANS has telegraphed to the War Department a report which has reached him, to the effect that the rebels have evacuated Vicksburgh. Information had previously reached Washington that they were removing their stores and war material into the interior, and the report of the evacuation is quite likely to be true.

A positive confirmation of the destruction of the Indianola by the rebels has been sent to the Navy Department by Admiral PORTER. The destruction was in consequence of the fright occasioned by the "turreted monster" sent down by the Vicksburgh batteries, and a full account of the affair is contained in the Vicksburgh Whig, of the 5th instant.

A dispatch from Cairo brings a report that a force of 12,000 rebels is approaching Fort Donelson—being already within twenty-eight miles of that fort. Our forces there are ready for them.

Our advices from the army under Gen. ROSECRANS are of the most gratifying character. The men and officers are in high spirits, confident and cheerful—well-clothed, well-fed and well-armed.

Washington was perturbed yesterday by a rumor that a considerable force of rebels had crossed the Rappahannock at United States Ford, and were making a raid against the right wing of Gen. HOOKER'S Army, with a view to forcing an engagement. The rumor was without any foundation in fact.

The Washington Republican reiterates the statement made by it a few days ago, that the rebels are in considerable force in the Shenandoah Valley, between New-Market and Staunton, and contemplating another raid on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

We received, on Saturday, advices from Port Royal to the 10th inst., by an arrival at this port. Gen. HUNTER'S great movement had not yet commenced, but a General Order had been issued by him on the 5th, in which he says that after long and wearying delays, due to causes over which no one in the Department had control, his command has at length the cheering prospect of active and very important service. On the same day Gen. HUNTER issued an order relieving Brig.-Gen. NAGLEE from duty, and ordering him to New-York, to report to the Adjutant-General. Another order, issued on the 6th, directs the drafting of all the able-bodied negroes in the Department, between the ages of 18 and 50, not otherwise employed by the Government, to garrison the various forts and posts, and thus relieve the white soldiers for more active duty.

The steamship Arago arrived at this port yesterday, from Port Royal on the morning of the 12th inst. The advices are two days later than before received, though we do not find that anything of interest had occurred. Among the passengers by the Arago are Brig.-Gen. NAGLEE and Staff. The letter of our correspondent giving the details of the encounter of our iron-clads with Fort McAllister will attract attention.

Accounts from South Carolina state that the magnificent English steamer Queen of the Wave was on Sunday, the 1st instant, stranded near the mouth of the North Santee, whilst endeavoring to run into Georgetown, S. C. The gunboat Conemaugh got sight of her, but was unable to follow her until the tide rose, and then found her aground and abandoned by her crew, who had first attempted to blow her up, but the explosion only slightly lifted her upper deck. The Conemaugh sent a boat, armed with a howitzer, to board her, and met a rebel boat coming from her with a Lieutenant and six soldiers on board. They surrendered, and were sent prisoners to Port Royal. The cargo of the Queen of the Wave consists of clothing and ammunition, and is said to be very valuable. Several vessels had been sent from Port Royal to try and get her off, and, if not, to save as much as possible of her cargo.

Regarding the visit of Secretary CHASE to New-York, the Washington Republican, of Saturday evening, says: "We learn by a private dispatch, received in this city this P. M., that the visit of Secretary CHASE to New-York promises to be in the highest degree successful as to the purposes in view, and that European parties are willing to lend to the United States Government any amount, up to one hundred millions, at current rates of exchange, and have so notified Secretary CHASE to-day."

The United States Senate adjourned sine die on Saturday, after a brief Executive session.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate, on Saturday, very little business of interest was done.

In the Assembly, among the bills favorably reported were the Broadway Railroad bill, the bill to construct a railroad between Morrisania and West Farms, the bill extending aid to the Albany and Susquehannah Railroad, and the bill for the regulation of the rate of interest. The bill authorizing the Intersectional Ferry Railroad in New-York was introduced; also, the bill relative to the payment of arrears of taxes and assessments in New-York. A bill providing for the election of Commissioners of the Croton Aqueduct Board was passed. The bill to incorporate the New-York Woman's Medical College was referred, with power to report complete.

GENERAL NEWS.

The steamship Teutonia, from Hamburg and Southampton, arrived at this port yesterday. The European advices are to the 25th ult. only. Other steamers have brought advices to the 1st inst.

The "Union League of New-York City" was inaugurated at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening by an audience of ladies and gentlemen, larger in numbers, and more enthusiastic in spirit than was probably ever before gathered within the walls of the Academy. The theatre was literally crammed from pit to dome long before the proceedings were opened, and in the course of the evening thousands were compelled to go away unable to gain admission. JAS. T. BRADY, Esq., was appointed Chairman of the meeting, and made the opening speech of the evening, which was even more emphatic and anti-copperhead than the one delivered by him at the Cooper Institute a week before. Mr. BRADY was followed by Gov. WRIGHT, of Indiana, and Gov. ANDY JOHNSON, of Tennessee, who were received with unbounded applause, and made out-and-out thorough-going war speeches. The meeting closed at 11½ o'clock with a patriotic song by the Union Glee Club, followed by nine cheers for Govs. WRIGHT and JOHNSON, and the sentiments they had uttered.

An enthusiastic meeting of Polanders resident here was held in Steuben Hall, Saturday evening, for the purpose of expressing sympathy with their countrymen in their present struggle. Dr. MACHAWICZ presided, and remarks were made by R. J. JAWOROWSKI, Maj. RASZOWSKI, and others. A response to an appeal from the National Polish Committee was adopted, and a committee chosen to arrange for a grand demonstration at Cooper Institute.

The War Department has become convinced that it has been misled into doing great injustice to Col. L. P. CESNOLA, of the Fourth New-York cavalry. An order has accordingly been issued declaring that "so much of General Orders as dismisses Col. L. P. CESNOLA, is, by direction of the President, revoked, and he is reinstated in his command, provided the vacancy in his regiment has not been filled."

The opinion of the Supreme Court at General Term, in the case of The People vs. JOHN OSMER, indicted for selling liquor on the Sabbath, affirming the decision of the Recorder that the offence is not indictable under the act of 1860, will be found in the law column.

In the Court of Sessions, on Saturday, JACOB WEILER, convicted, a few days since, of murder in the second degree, in shooting his wife with a pistol, on the 27th of August last, was sentenced by Recorder HOFFMAN to the State Prison for life.

The Stock market was moderately active on Saturday. Gold Coin left off at 157¾ ℘ cent. Exchange 175 ℘ cent. The Secretary of the Treasury was at the Sub-Treasury Office, in Wall-street, several hours in the afternoon. He remains in town for two or three days longer.

Breadstuffs were quiet on Saturday; prices were generally lower. Pork was dull and cheaper. Cut Meats and Bacon sold freely at full prices. Lard was depressed and declining. Beef, Butter and Cheese were inactive. Cotton was also inactive, and Middlings closed heavily at 85c. ℘ lb. Groceries were lightly dealt in, as likewise were Hides, Hops, Leather, Oils, Fish, Fruit, Hemp, Salt, Spices, Tobacco and Whisky—the latter article having fallen slightly. Clover Seed was in less request and was lower. Wool was active and buoyant. The freight market was very quiet, with 453 vessels of all classes in port.

The Copperheads and Public Opinion.

We are for crushing the Secesh; we are also for crushing the Copperhead. To our mind, there is not, essentially, a jot's difference between them. They are simply varieties of the same species. The one moves in the highway, the other in the grass. The one carries his venom in the head, the other in the tail. The one strikes at the heart, the other at the heel. But they are alike malignant, alike detestable, alike fatal to the Republic.

We say that we are for crushing them both. Yet not by the same means. For the one, lead and iron. For the other, nothing of that sort at all. Let no violence touch him. In his case, it would only "scotch, not kill." There is a surer quietus. There is an agency as impalpable as the air, which yet, if brought fitly to bear, would practically exterminate every Copperhead in the land. We mean public opinion.

Our troubles, thus far, with these Northern enemies of the Government have come altogether from a neglect of this power. We have never energized it, as was our bounden duty. It has, to be sure, had some sort of an existence all the while, but with very little real potency. It has been like the sluggish mists of the hill-side, instead of what it ought to have been—the electricity that charges the whole atmosphere, and that can smite fearfully. It was like the mists that only hang on the morning, and not the lightning that concentrates itself all the more in thickest gloom. For is it not a fact that our public feeling had the most coherence about it at the opening of the war, when all expected there would be bright times soon? The bright times did come, but night followed. And does anybody deny that as the shadows deepened, what was called public opinion became so vague that it was hardly determinable at all?

The truth is that we Northern people have suffered more than is thought from the maudlin sentimentalism which has been so rife amongst us during these latter years. There has been such a deal of sickly stuff vented about the wrong of intolerance and about the boundless potency of moral suasion, that the whole Northern fibre has become relaxed. Convictions don't have the hold upon us they did upon our fathers. The old Achillean wrath against untrue men, the grim old Puritanic indignation against the workers of iniquity, has been gradually giving place to a charity as impotent as it is passionless. This indiscriminate charity that has been so generally inculcated, so far from having a sacred sanction, belongs only to the very weakest and meanest elements of human nature. It is high time we were rid of it. What our Northern loyalty has needed more than any other one thing under heaven, is a terrible earnestness—something of the high vehemence, the God-implanted rage, against the destroyers of good, that should not only give our soldiers more mettle, more vigor, more vim, wherewith to encounter the rebels, but should give our people, themselves, a deeper and hotter hate of the rebel allies in their midst. The soldiers, thanks to stern experience, have at last got it nearly in full measure. Their spirit was never so intense as now. But the people, on the other hand, have been relapsing into their old lax indulgence. There has been a change among them, not for the better but for the worse.

Sentiments are daily uttered here on the street corners, in the public conveyances, in the social clubs, in public meetings, nay in the very public journals themselves, which, to all intents and purposes, are as traitorous as could come from the lips of JEFF. DAVIS himself. They are uttered without fear, and, what is more, without danger. Their authors seem to take a positive pleasure, a certain sort of malignant satisfaction, in abusing their privilege of free speech, because, forsooth, it shows how brave they are, when they in their hearts know there is nothing to be afraid of. Now we maintain they ought to have something to be afraid of. Not imprisonment not banishment, not lynching—though the Tories of the Revolution, who were not a whit worse, experienced a plenty of all that sort of thing—but the instant denunciation of every loyal man within hearing. There are no terms of resentment and contempt in the English language which may not fitly be applied to the wretch that, in a day like this, openly reviles his country and speaks on the side of her enemies. There is no more virtue in holding your peace on such occasions, or answering only with smooth words, than there would be in doing the like under the abuse of the woman who bore you. There are provocations, as we have read, at which "the soul of every God-created man flames wholly into one divine blaze of sacred wrath," and this most assuredly ought to be one of them. Talk of tolerance, or charity, or the right of free speech in that connection!—it is a mockery.

If loyal men would only exalt their patriotism to the right pitch, and then keep steadily true to themselves, there would be a quick end to the hissing and stinging of these reptiles. It is a happy provision of nature that this kind of creature is always cowardly. Courage is a quality that never assorts with this inherent vileness. Even if it were not so, if there were actually real pluck and grit in these parasites of treason, there yet ought to be force enough in public opinion to put them down. In the Confederacy, we know, an intensity of feeling prevails sufficient to cow even the most noble. Unionists exist there in no inconsiderable numbers. Yet we have to hear of the first man of them who dares openly to avow himself for the Union, far less to insult and browbeat the Secessionists about him. They all feel the stern pressure of the dominant feeling, and make no sign. If the rebel temper can so intimidate the bravest spirits of the South, shall we pretend that loyal temper can have no control over the most abject natures of the North? If the one class dare not even announce their honest convictions, though ever so respectfully, may not the other class be somewhat restrained from pouring out their rankest spite? To doubt it is childish. It can be done. It ought to be done. It must be done, or the present tameness will still further degenerate into an abasement of soul that will surely bring on a most ignominious and ruinous peace.

A Case of Wonderful Assurance.

The reappearance in public of Mr. ISAAC TOUCEY, after two years of enforced seclusion, is one of those incidents which must convince the most despondent and most unfortunate of the folly of despair. His speech at Hartford, the other night must, we imagine, have sent a thrill of joy through every abode of sin and wretchedness throughout the length and breadth of the land. There is a popular notion that there is a large class of offences for which condemnation or pardon on this side of the grave is hopeless; and we none of us ever listen to five minutes' conversation upon the vanity of worldly things, without hearing men's hardness, uncharitableness and bitterness toward the victims of misfortune descanted upon as one of the most lamentable and notorious facts of this sorrowful life. There is, we are told, on all sides a disposition to accelerate the movement of persons who show any tendency downwards; a strong desire to keep down those who have once fallen, to treasure the memory of their fault, to doubt the sincerity of their repentance, and to predict their relapse. If the sinner's own conscience makes his way hard when he is sinning, his fellows make it harder when he is trying to amend; and vast numbers of those who are groping in darkness are said to prefer the horrors of their situation to facing the jeers and scoffings and scorn that would hail their reappearance in the light.

Now it seems to us that the world has in this matter, as in many others, been grossly maligned. It is evidently not so bad a world as we most of us try to make out. There is evidently no offence against the peace or fame or welfare of our fellows which we may not commit, with the certainty that, after a short period of purgatorial retirement, society will receive us with an interest bearing a direct ratio to the enormity of our crimes. And this seems to be peculiarly true of our own highly favored country. We carry our good nature to a point never before reached in any age or in any other clime. There is nothing we will not forgive as long as there is a breath left in our bodies. We forgive firstly all offences against the country at large, such as treason, and swindling, and corruption, and rebellion; and we forgive, secondly, all offences committed against our neighbors from which we have not personally suffered. A man may try to overturn the Government, or rob it of millions, or run away in battle, or march away and leave his comrades to be slaughtered, break half a dozen oaths, violate a thousand pledges, bring shame and sorrow on the land of his birth by any means that suits his whim, or his greed, or his baseness, and he will find in his darkest hour hundreds of doors open to him, and hundreds of boards spread for him in all the cities of the Union. Or he may cheat his customers, or defraud his creditors, or swindle his partners, or embezzle moneys, and if he can only keep out of prison and will only put a bold face on the matter, he may still be sure of a certain amount of social consideration, and a very fair amount of political success.

The London Spectator said very recently, commenting on this strange indulgence of ours for the worst infirmities of human nature, that if any man had been guilty of the same offences, whether of commission or omission, against the peace and honor of England, which we all of us believe Mr. JAMES BUCHANAN to have been guilty of against the peace and honor of the United States, he would never set foot on English soil without the certainty of meeting capital punishment in some manner or other. We think, however, we may point to Mr. TOUCEY'S reappearance on a public platform in the capacity of an instructor and adviser of the people of Connecticut, at a great crisis in their history, and his reception with "three cheers," as a still more striking proof of our magnanimity. Mr. BUCHANAN was an old man when he allowed the Southern conspirators to do their worst, and we know him to have been a weak man, and he very probably looked on the work of destruction with the eye of helpless imbecility. But Mr. TOUCEY is entitled to all the blame or all the credit —we must leave it to the citizens of Hartford to decide which it is—of having, in the prime of life, with all his wits about him, and the result plainly before him, made such use of the powers lodged in his hands by the people, as would afford most facilities for the overthrow of the Constitution which he had solemnly sworn to uphold. He at least may well pronounce this to be the land of hope, —a veritable city of refuge.

Two years ago, when he returned to Hartford, there were none so poor as to bid him welcome. He came red-handed from the scene of havoc, in which he had played a leading part, and his garments still smelt of the smoke; and every man who loved what he had helped to ruin, turned away from him in scorn and indignation. Since then nothing has occurred to change either the character of his crime or to lessen the odium which should attend it. He has retracted nothing and repented nothing. The whole history of the war is but a monster indictment against him and his accomplices. The two hundred thousand men who now lie in bloody graves are so many witnesses that the North solemnly believed him guilty of connivance at the attempt which has led to this tremendous suffering and slaughter. There is no dispute about the facts which we knew from the beginning, and no fresh facts have come to light. And yet he is now out in public, not to confess or to ask forgiveness, but to glory in all he has ever done, to rebuke and instruct the nation whose destruction he has compassed.

Mr. Greeley's Position.

Mr. GREELEY protested, in sending us the letter, which we gave our readers on Saturday morning, that he did not ask its publication as a favor at our hands. With every disposition to oblige him, we are unable to conceive how the publication of that letter could have been construed into a "favor" to him, even by the most indulgent of his friends. His worst enemy could have done him no worse turn.

With its bearing on the personal controversy between Mr. GREELEY and Mr. WEED we have nothing to do. We wish that both these able and influential gentlemen could find it consistent with their sense of duty to themselves to postpone everything that is merely personal in their differences until the country has been rescued from the ruin that threatens it. But in this matter, being fully competent to act for themselves, they must do so upon their own responsibility.

The controversy, however, has very important public aspects. Mr. GREELEY professes to be a warm supporter of the Government—not only as a citizen, but as a leading member of the party which brought it into power; and his influence upon the public mind, as well as upon the conduct of the Administration, gives to his views and counsels a degree of importance which challenges general attention and scrutiny. We see with the deepest regret, therefore, that in the letter referred to, Mr. GREELEY renews his vindication of the right of secession, reaffirms his declaration, that unless we substantially conquer the rebels in the campaign now opening and within the next three months, we ought, in his own words, to "acknowledge the corn," and abandon the contest, and again expresses his willingness to submit the whole controversy to the arbitration of some foreign Power—specifying Switzerland as the most to his taste. And the prominent reason which Mr. GREELEY assigns for favoring these measures is, that he is confident Slavery could secure no substantial advantage from any of them. What might happen to the Union,—what might become of the Nation, seems to be with him a consideration of entirely secondary importance, not allowed to control his views on any of the points to which he refers.

We must confess that this strikes us as substantially a disloyal, and certainly as a most dangerous, position; and we regret that Mr. GREELEY adheres to it with so much tenacity.

A DESERVED PROMOTION.—Among the recent promotions to the post of Brigadier-General, none will give more universal satisfaction to all who appreciate sterling merit, than that of Capt. AYRES, who has commanded one or more batteries of artillery from the very commencement of the war, and who has rendered most distinguished service in nearly every battle that has been fought since the first gun was fired. He is an officer of rare merit and of still rarer modesty—never obtruding his services or his claims on public attention, or on the notice of the official authorities; and one result of this has been, that while hundreds of officers who have rendered far less service were pushed rapidly forward to the very highest positions, he remained plain Captain AYRES, though for much of the time doing the duty of a Brigadier, but on a captain's pay. At the battle of Antietam he had six batteries under his command, and at the crisis of the engagement was sent for by Gen. MCCLELLAN, who asked him if he could take his artillery across a stream in front, and through some marshy ground which bordered it. "Sir," was his reply, "I can take my artillery wherever it is wanted." He did take it where it was wanted, and where it carried fearful carnage into the rebel ranks. The Government cannot afford to leave such men in the rear ranks, merely because they will not push themselves forward for promotion.

THE TURRETED MONSTER AGAIN.—Take it for all in all, the tremendous feat of PORTER'S mock Monitor is rather the funniest thing of the war, and the more we hear of it the more laughable the affair seems. We give this morning an account of it written by Admiral PORTER himself, another from a Vicksburgh paper, and a third from our own correspondent. "ERICSSON," says PORTER, "saved the country with an iron Monitor—why could not I save it with a wooden one?" The Richmond Examiner, however, in its description of the "turreted monster," was wrong in characterizing it as a vessel with a "small house taken from the back garden of a plantation" on top of it. As described by its inventor, the monster was simply a broken down coal barge which was picked up in the river, with a few old boards run around it, some empty pork barrels piled on top of each other for smoke-stacks, and with furnaces built of mud, for the purpose of vomiting forth black smoke.

Never were rebels so scared, never was an army thrown into such a state of mad consternation, as were the rebel army and navy at Vicksburgh, when by the dim light of the moon, this stupendous and infernal craft was seen moving slowly toward the rebel citadel. It was evidently intended to blow up the whole rebel Confederacy, and who could tell but that after capturing Vicksburgh, it might move overland to Richmond, and open its artillery upon the cadaverous frontispiece of JEFF. DAVIS himself? "Never," says Admiral PORTER, "never did the batteries of Vicksburgh open with such a din; the earth fairly trembled, and the shot flew thick around the devoted Monitor." The whole rebel garrison of Vicksburgh, says our correspondent, was beat to arms, and every rebel stood shivering like an aspen leaf.

But, horror to the rebel soul! the monster is invulnerable, and sweeps by the batteries unhurt. At daylight they open on her again with all the guns they can bring to bear; but she proudly rides the wave, undisturbed and indestructible, while her pork-barrels belch forth the sulphurous smoke that is generated in her furnace of mud. Had there been a single soul aboard of her to go over to Vicksburgh and demand its surrender, we have no doubt that the whole rebel army at that place might now have been taking the oath of allegiance. PORTER says that one object in sending her down was to disable the rebel guns, as he had learned that at their last grand cannonade five pieces of their artillery were burst and dismounted. It would seem that on this occasion they burst all the remainder, for rumors come thick and fast of the intended evacuation of Vicksburgh. We know already that in their fright they blew to atoms the iron-clad Indianola—"not even a gun was saved," says the Vicksburgh Whig. "The Queen of the West," says another rebel account, "fled in such a hurry as to forget part of her crew," and the Webb has not been heard of since. Such a scene of general wrack and ruin, flight, confusion and dismay, on land and river, never was known on the American continent or any other. We perfectly agree with the Richmond Examiner, that every rebel connected with the affair—and there must have been at least fifty thousand of them connected with it—"should be branded with the capital letters 'T. M.,' and enrolled in a detached company, to be known by the name of 'The Turreted Monster,' henceforth and forever."

SOLDIERS' CLAIMS—A GOOD MOVEMENT.—An excellent association has just been formed in this City, with the title of the "Protective War-Claim Association," under the Presidency of Gen. SCOTT, and having for its directors Senator MORGAN, Mayor OPDYKE, JOHN JACOB ASTOR, WM. E. DODGE, GEORGE BANCROFT, and other gentlemen of equal public distinction and distinguished patriotism, with the object of acting between the soldiers of this State and the Government, in the claims of the former for pay, pensions, etc. The action of the Association will be in some sense a complement to the operations of the "Allotment system," which has effected such a large amount of benefit to the volunteers and their families. It will secure the just claims of soldiers and sailors and their families; will protect them from imposture and fraud, and will furnish them advice and information, while at the same time it will aid the Government and the country, by preventing false claims from being made against them. All its work is to be done without cost to the claimant, and it will be sustained by the subscriptions of such patriotic gentlemen of this City and State as may be willing thus to serve the country and the soldiers. The character of the gentlemen who act as officers of the Association places it far above suspicion of the possibility of any interested motive, and will secure for it at once the complete confidence of every New-York soldier and sailor in the National service.

Even before the present war, and while our army consisted of but a few thousand men, the business of pressing soldiers' claims for pay and pensions upon the Government was an extensive one, and furnished lucrative employment to a large number of lawyers. Swindling, we are sorry to say, was very extensively carried on, and a far larger proportion of soldiers' dues, both in money and land-warrants, fell into the hands of sharpers than into the hands of their proper owners; while, on the other hand, the Government suffered no less severely by fraudulent claims. If such was the case when our army and navy consisted of but eighteen or twenty thousand men, what may we look for when the claims of a million men have to be adjudicated? We may expect frauds without number upon the soldiers, frauds without number upon the Government, and loss beyond measure to the country. Here, however, as in so many other instances in this war—as in the case of the Sanitary Commission, the Allotment Commission, the Freedman's Relief Association, &c.—private enterprise, patriotism, and philanthropy have come to the rescue of the soldiers, the Government and the country. We have no doubt that the "War Claim Association" will do its patriotic work efficiently, honestly and well, to the advantage of every soldier engaged in fighting his country's battles.

WROUGHT IRON CANNON.—We are glad to learn, through the advertisement of the Naval Bureau of Ordnance, that proposals for wrought-iron rifled 100-pounders are invited. The wording of the advertisement, however, —that the guns are to stand 1,000 rounds with the service charges, "without bursting, or wearing in such a manner as to cause apprehensions of bursting"—is deemed very unsatisfactory by iron-workers, on the ground that the whole case is finally left, not to the developed and most obvious fact of bursting, or not bursting, but to the mere theoretical opinion of officials.

In this view of the case, we are glad to be able to state, by authority, that this proposition is not intended to be final on the part of the Government, but is designed primarily to elicit the opinions of our iron-workers as to the proper means of calling out the best gun. For instance, if the test preferred is a higher number of rounds without bursting, irrespective of official "apprehensions," there will be no difficulty in arranging a contract to that effect. The Armstrong wrought-iron, muzzle-loading 150-pounder, carries the highest charge of powder, and is, probably, the most formidable gun of its calibre (10½ inches) in the world. We believe that several American plans of fabricating wrought-iron guns, are at once better and cheaper than Sir WILLIAM ARMSTRONG'S. If not, his process is well understood.

Whatever may be the value of our heavy cast iron ordnance in straining and racking iron-clad ships and loosening their armor, and in firing enormous shells horizontally with great precision, there is a most important function that they will not perform, viz.—stand the powder necessary to propel shot at the high velocities which can alone make a clean breach through iron plates. It is high time for us to have heavy guns that, like the best European guns, will stand, in proportion to the weight of the ball, three times as much powder as our 15-inch ordnance. Of course, the Government should in every way coöperate with inventors and iron-workers, and they, in turn, should remember the time and patience expended by Government officers in examining the almost innumerable schemes submitted to them, nine-tenths of which, of course, are worthless—and remembering this, expect to submit to some delay and indifference.

THE CASE OF GEN. STOUGHTON.—We publish in another column a letter from E. W. STOUGHTON, Esq., of this City, in reply to a communication in the TIMES of Saturday, concerning the recent capture of Gen. STOUGHTON by a rebel night-raid at Fairfax Court-house. Mr. S. submits for public consideration sundry circumstances which, in his judgment, refute utterly the most serious of the imputations contained in that communication upon the personal and professional character of Gen. STOUGHTON. Simple justice to the General requires that they should receive all the weight to which they are entitled. The public is inclined just now, without doubt, to judge with rigor and severity the conduct of every officer who fails, whether through his own fault or not, to perform the special service committed to his hands. At the same time, we do not doubt the public willingness to give a fair hearing to whatever may be said in extenuation of such grave faults as those which are laid to the General's charge.

We should gladly place at Mr. STOUGHTON'S command the name of our Vermont correspondent, without the inducement which he offers, if we felt at liberty to do so. But as we have no reason to suppose that in sending us his communication he was prompted by any other motives than a sense of public duty, we must leave our correspondent himself to act in the matter as he may see fit. We shall very gladly give to the public any facts that may relieve Gen. STOUGHTON from the censures cast upon him: for his past services during the war have been such as should entitle him to the kindly and grateful regards of the whole country.

DISSENSIONS AMONG THE OFFICERS IN SOUTH CAROLINA.—We have received from Port Royal a long account of the recent difficulties in which Gens. HUNTER, FOSTER and NAGLEE have been involved, growing wholly out of supposed violations of military etiquette, and infringements on the rights of individual officers. We decline to publish it, partly because it has very little interest for the public at large, but mainly because the public is not in a mood to look with the slightest favor on personal controversies which delay important movements, and sacrifice the good of the country to personal feelings or interests. There have already been one or two postponements of the attack for which the whole country is looking with so much anxiety, on account of dissensions and disagreements among the Commanding Generals. It is time all this was stopped. Gen. HUNTER is in command of the Department, and so long as he holds that position we trust he will be allowed to conduct its affairs according to his own judgment of the necessities of the case. Appeals by aggrieved officers from his decisions to the public judgment are ill-timed, and will not be regarded with favor beyond the immediate circle of their personal friends. The people are occupied with other matters.

FROM THE STATE CAPITAL.

The Appointment of the Grinding Commtiee—A Vote of Confidence in Speaker Callicot—Dutch Documents—The City Railroad Bills—Legislation Much Behind.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Saturday, March 14.

The House resolutions, raising a Grinding Committee, are well-guarded, and were passed after a full understanding of their scope. The only intention was that the Committee should be a genuine help, and not a machine to grind grists that never should be ground under any circumstances, and would not be, except possibly by a Committee under the control of the owner of the grists.

In the House the principal question was, whether the Committee should be appointed by the Speaker or the House itself. On this was the only struggle. In pursuance of caucus agreement, Mr. GILBERT moved that, contrary to all practice, the appointing of it should be taken from the Speaker, and given to the House. Of course this afforded another occasion for Mr. T. C. FIELDS to display himself in opposition to the Speaker. Mr. SHERWOOD resisted the change as a deliberate and intentional imputation on the Speaker, and demanded the yeas and nays. When the vote was announced it stood thirty-two for Mr. GILBERT's motion, and 67 against—more than two to one in favor of giving the power to the Speaker. In the list of yeas were 56 Union Republicans, and 11 Democrats; absentees, 29, of whom 12 were Democrats not paired. So that not only the Union Republicans, but 22, or over one-third of the Democrats, virtually expressed their confidence in the integrity of Speaker CALLICOT. Coming, as this vote did, less than twenty-four hours after the debate on Mr. FIELDS' corruption charges, and their reference to a Committee of Investigation, the vote was very significant.

I fear that the Senate bill, providing for the translation of certain musty Dutch documents in the Department of the Secretary of State into English, to transcribe them into books, &c., &c., is more a job than a measure of utility. Of this Dutch document business the State has had a good deal, and it has cost a large sum of money, with little of practical value. For ten or fifteen years, and perhaps longer, there has been a steady drain on the Treasury, till it was believed that the Dutch documents were exhausted. But more have turned up, and it is proposed to recommence the business at the rate of $1,500 per annum.

There being some misunderstanding about the introduction of the bill imposing an additional tax on salt, it was referred back to the Committee of Ways and Means to hear argument.

The House has passed about seventy-five bills, the Senate 105. Considerable less than the lowest number have become laws. It will be seen from this that the business is much behind, and that inevitably less than the average number of laws will be passed.

Mr. FREEMAN, from the Committee of National Affairs in the House, reported amendments to the License law, among others, reducing the license fee, with the view to the better enforcement of the statute.

This being the last day which, under the rules, bills can be introduced without unanimous consent, a large number was introduced, generally of a local character. Among others, by Mr. LEAMY, to repeal the act providing for a Railroad in South and other streets, in New-York. By Mr. JOHNSON, the New-York Cross-town Railroad, which has been in the Senate for some time. A vast number of bills relating to New-York City, in a variety of ways, were introduced. Among others, by Mr. O'BRIEN, incorporating the "New-York Accommodation Company," making it lawful for certain parties to carry passengers for hire through all the streets, avenues and Parks in New-York City—a sort of omnibus incorporation, at rates not exceeding the present hack rates.

The Exemption Society asks incorporation. The bill incorporates GODFREY GUNTHER and others, with the object of securing exemption from draft under the $300 clause. The rest may be inferred.

There seems to be no end to New-York City Railroads. To-day, in addition to those already noticed, we have the Intersectional Ferry Railroad, wherein CHRISTIAN B. MORRISON, DAVID P. BARHYDT, JOHN M. B. DAVIDSON, of Albany, THOMAS McELRATH, and HENRY B. HEWITT, and their associates, are the incorporators, and are permitted to construct a railroad commencing near corner Broadway and Vesey-street, down Broadway to State, through State to the Brooklyn and Staten Island ferries, returning up Broadway to the starting point, with tracks and turn-outs to run through Cortlandt-street to Jersey ferry, through that to West-street and Hoboken ferry, up Barclay to Broadway, up to and through John-street to Burling-slip, around to Peck-slip ferry, through South-street to and through Beekman to Park-row, thence to place of beginning; also connecting Wall-street and ferry with Broadway, by Pearl, Maiden-lane, and William-street; also a network of intersections with South and other ferries, by Front, Greenwich and other streets.

The resolution complimenting Gen. BUTLER, and inviting him to the Capital coming up, Mr. HUTCHINGS denounced him as the Haynau of the war, and a public plunderer, in contrast with Gen. McCLELLAN, who, he said, was a gentleman as well as a General. There being scarcely a quorum, the resolution was laid over.

The hearing before the Senate Committee, yesterday, on the Broadway Railroad question drew a crowd of listeners. The argument of Mr. VAN BUREN, embracing a formal proposition from Mr. STEWART to pay two millions for the franchise, was ingenious and able. He was followed by JOHN R. PORTER, Esq., in a very forcible argument against the Law Stage bill, and in favor of the bill which has slept in the House for two or three weeks. It is rumored that the Committee will report the Law Stage bill at an early day. RODERICK.

Premium on Gold.—The Subscriber, who cannot change his prices with the fluctuations of gold without incurring enormous expense in advertising the changes, is compelled to sell his Pens at old prices. Thinking his customers entitled to the benefit of the premium on gold, rather than the Wall-street debasers of the best currency this country ever had, he now offers to all remitting the amount of their orders in gold, the full premium in this City on the day when received. In this way he hopes to do the country and his customers some good without injuring himself, for the MORTON PEN cannot be made without gold. THRILLING REVELATIONS!
ARBITRARY ARRESTS IN THE SOUTH; OR,
SCENES FROM THE EXPERIENCE OF AN ALABAMA UNIONIST.
By R. S. THARIN, A. M.,
A native of Charleston, S. C., for thirty years a resident of the Cotton States, a former law-partner of Wm. L. Yancey, and commonly known in the West as the "Alabama Refugee."
This remarkable and thrilling book gives such an inside view of events in the South as we have not heretofore had. It depicts the sufferings, the trials, the persecutions, the dangers, the escapes, of a Southern Unionist, in vivid and stirring language; and while it possesses the fascinating interest of a romance, the character and social position of the author are warrants of its fidelity. DEAFNESS
NOISES IN THE HEAD,
Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG.

From the Journal of Commerce.

EXCITING NEWS FOR THE DEAF.—An instrument called Dr. Von Eisenberg's Air Passage Expander and Regulator, a gigantic machine, weighing nearly five hundred pounds, about five feet in height, a most wonderful apparatus for restoring sight and hearing, has just arrived for Dr. Von Eisenberg, the celebrated Oculist and Aurist, and will be on exhibition at the Doctor's office, No. 816 Broadway, for a few days previous to its use. The instrument is constructed decidedly on the most scientific principles. To give a detailed description would require a greater space than we can now spare. Our Oculist and Aurist seems to do everything in the line of his profession on a gigantic scale. The new instrument for restoring hearing to the deaf and sight to the blind is so constructed that it cannot fail to open the most obstructed air passages. His new consulting rooms, No. 816 Broadway, are correspondingly magnificent, and his practice as Aurist and Oculist large and eminently successful.

From the New-York Evening Express, Feb. 14, 1863.

SENSATION AMONG THE DEAF.—The unrivaled skill of Dr. Von Eisenberg, the far-famed Oculist and Aurist, of No. 816 Broadway, has made quite a sensation among the Deaf and Blind by his wonderful cures, which attract the Deaf, Blind and those suffering from Chronic Catarrh, from all parts of the Union to his office. The number of his certificates of really wonderful cures swells daily. For the benefit of sufferers, we submit the following, which requires no comment:

NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain. JOHN TAYLOR, No. 13 Livingston-st., Brooklyn.

NEW-YORK, July 19, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.
CARROLL J. POST, No. 28 South-st.

No. 188 MERCER-ST., NEW-YORK.

J. E. VON EISENBERG, M. D.—Dear Doctor: I have been afflicted with total deafness, and was induced to pay you a visit. No one can imagine my delight when, after one operation, my hearing was suddenly, and without pain, restored to me, for which I feel very grateful. After being totally deaf—almost shut out from the pleasure of using so necessary a sense—to have it returned, and to hear so distinctly, reflects great credit on you for the immense amount of skill you possess. I beg to thank you for what I can so truly appreciate. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 6, 1862.

DR. VON EISENBERG—Dear Sir: Before taking leave of you, after your most successful operation on my ear, allow me to express my sincere thanks that, by your scientific surgical performance, I am enabled to hear distinctly, and enjoy a pleasure of which I have long been deprived—over a year. May you be rewarded by being enabled to perform many similar, to benefit other sufferers, and to your own emolument.

Allow me to present my kindest regards, and assure you of my grateful remembrance. Respectfully,
A. McDONALD REYNOLDS,
Captain Marines, United States.

NEW-YORK, May 17, 1862.

I have much pleasure in being able to certify that I have suffered for a long time from Sclerotitis, and nearly complete loss of sight. I have consulted a great many, as well as visiting institutions, not only without benefit, but my case was given up as incurable. I despaired of ever recovering my sight, until hearing of Dr. Von Eisenberg's great cures. I determined to place myself under his care as a last resource. It resulted in a complete cure. From the skillful treatment, great care and attention which I experienced from the Doctor, I have no hesitation in recommending all those suffering from diseases of the eye to place themselves under Dr. Von Eisenberg's care, with a certainty of being completely cured. I shall be happy to bear personal testimony.
JOSEPH WALKER, Greenpoint.

CLERGYMEN, READ THIS.

CLERGYMEN, READ THIS.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 2, 1862.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK—Sir: I feel it my duty, for the sake of the sick and suffering of humanity, to relate to you the following facts:

Last May I was attacked with hemorrhage of the lungs, and bled profusely, and, not finding the proper remedy, still again I bled in one month after, and became weaker than before. Then I fully comprehended the danger, and cast about for an ægis from the impending doom.

Naturally skeptical and fearful of being duped, having an inveterate abhorrence of empirics, I was slow to trust, and with regard to your medicines I was obstinate even to a fault. Not until the living witnesses, healed, recovered, with full breathing powers, stood before me, would I be persuaded. Not until the efficacious balm was purchased and brought to my room, and forced upon me, would I try it. Two of my parishoners informed me of their wonderful recovery; one had taken nineteen bottles of the Pulmonic Syrup for bleeding of the lungs and was completely cured, and is now doing battle in the service of his country. The other was a person who was on the verge of death for more than a year, bleeding at every little excitement and despairing of recovery until she found relief in your Syrup. She came before me apparently in the very bloom of health, with brilliant, florid countenance and portly bearing—the last person I should have suspected of having ever been under the pale sheet of New-England's fell destroyer—Consumption.

She looked to you as the mighty deliverer from its scourge, and to your Syrup as a panacea from the complaint. She was a member of my church, and felt an interest in my recovery; and though sanguine and even enthusiastic, as she had a right to be, because she herself had been healed, yet there stood the living visible truth before me. Could I doubt her word? Could I refuse a remedy so mild, so palatable, and yet so efficacious? No. Life was too precious, yet too precarious, to delay a moment. I took six bottles of the Syrup, and recovering rapidly, I went into the country for three months for the benefit of the air. But, alas, the air could not benefit me without the medicine. I went without that, and after bleeding again, I resolved to come back. I was much fatigued on arriving in Boston, and bled the same night. My case was again critical. Immediately I applied for the Syrup, and soon began rapidly to improve and recover what I had lost. I am still under treatment, but have nearly recovered. I never weighed so much as I do now. I never looked so full in the cheek, and, excepting a nervous weakness about the chest, and a frequent eructation of wind, I am quite strong. These, however, are receding before the Mandrake Pills and Seaweed Tonic. I have taken them but a few days, but have found great relief. According to present appearances I shall be able to preach again very soon, and come out of this sickness stronger than I ever was before.

As our callings are similar in striving to relieve the ills of life—you for the body, I for the spirit; you for the sick, and I in preaching to the poor—I feel it my duty to lay before the world my testimony in favor of your Pulmonic Syrup. Yours,
HENRY MORGAN,
Pastor of the Union Mission and First Independent Methodist Church, of Boston.

FUN AND HUMOR OF THE WAR.
A ROLLICKING RECORD OF THE REBELLION.
No history of the present war would be complete and perfect without those bright threads of fun which are interwoven with the suffering, blood and carnage of the conflict at arms. To supply this most interesting and curious chapter, the proprietors of the NEW-YORK MERCURY have had compiled, expressly for the columns of that journal,
A COMPLETE COLLECTION OF ALL THE FUN IN RHYME
which the incidents of the war have evoked, as well in Dixie as in Yankee Doodledom, from the incipient rumblings of the rebellion till the present time, the whole forming A RARE, CURIOUS AND MOST AMUSING MELANGE, at once valuable and interesting, and eminently worthy of preservation.
Commencing with "Ye eventful career of J. Buchanan," in which the feelings of that eminent public functionary and condemned fogy are described, while the rebels "Took all the forts, and hauled down the flag."
Every important incident of the war, done up in rhyme, follows in a narrative form, till the Battle of Antietam, with other subsequent poetical effusions of great variety, showing, in brief, that
"We air the greatest nation,
In all the Lord's creation;
We air the hull world's wonder,
En we hev the biggest thunder,
Accordin to popilation."
This glorious and exhilerating
BATCH OF FUN
will be published in

FOOTE'S PATENT UMBRELLA LOCK STAND,
Manufactured by
WHEELER & WILSON
SEWING MACHING COMPANY.
Office No. 505 Broadway,
NEW-YORK.

UMBRELLA INSURANCE.—The obscurity which has surrounded the right of property in umbrellas, from the days of the daring Jonas Hanway to days present, is at last cleared away by Yankee ingenuity. A Mr. Foote has not only established the doctrine that there is such a thing as ownership of the article, but has shown how to maintain it. His "Lock Umbrella Stand," in itself an ornamental piece of furniture, has the advantage of giving the proprietor the same certainty of possession as if the handle were within his grasp. The moment the umbrella drops to its place in the rack, the handle is by a single movement grasped and held firmly in the clutch of a lock which nothing but the key specially manufactured for the particular depository can loose. The key, which is practically a pawn-ticket for the article, is of less weight and no greater size than a nickel cent, and adds no perceptible weight to the vest pocket. The invention is at once ingenious and useful. Its introduction into counting-rooms, hotels, offices and halls, and other places of pupic and private resort, must become general.—New-York Times.

FOOTE'S PATENT UMBRELLA LOCK STAND.—A new invention, which bids fair to supersede and exclude entirely from the market all the stands that have heretofore been used.—New-York Tribune.

This new invention combines, with a tasteful umbrella stand, perfect security against the loss of an umbrella, and is recommended as an article of universal utility.—The World.

One of the most ingenious as well as useful inventions of the day, insuring perfect safety to an article proverbially given to be led astray.—Journal of Commerce.

It is an invention which gives great promise of putting an end to umbrella theft, and for hotels, restaurants and similar places, this novel invention must be very desirable.—Commercial Advertiser.

An ingenious and perfect contrivance for preserving the right of property in an article, which is notoriously difficult to keep. Without the check key (a piece of brass small enough to put in the vest pocket) the umbrella cannot be removed; hence every man receives his own, and knows that nobody else can get it. The stand is ornamental and low priced.—Evening Post.

The frequent expressions of public satisfaction with Foote's Patent Lock Stands, used in our store, warrants us in warmly recommending them for the purpose for which they are designed.
BALL, BLACK & CO.,
Nos. 565 and 567 Broadway, New-York.

We have used Foote's Patent Umbrella Lock Stand, and find it not only useful for the ordinary purposes of umbrella stands, but perfectly adapted for securing to owners of umbrellas what has heretofore been considered rather in the light of common property.
TIFFANY & CO.,
Nos. 550 and 552 Broadway, New-York.

By the use of Foote's Patent Umbrella Lock Stands I am relieved of all former trouble of wet umbrellas, this new invention acting well its part in holding them in their proper place, and yielding them to their owners only. WILLIAM TAYLOR, Taylor's Saloon, No. 555 Broadway, New-York.

I have long felt the inconvenience of having wet umbrellas scattered throughout my rooms. The loss of umbrellas by being misplaced, exchanged, or otherwise carried off, has proved no small annoyance both to myself and customers. By the use of Foote's Patent Umbrella Lock Stands all difficulties are obviated. Umbrellas are now kept in their proper place, subject to the call of their owners only. I would recommend them to the public as an article not only of convenience, but of necessity.
A. D. THOMPSON,
Thompson's Coffee House, No. 292 Broadway, New-York.

I am using Foote's Patent Umbrella Lock Stand, and consider it one of the greatest inventions of the day. It proves a saving of time and trouble, as well as a protection to property. D. C. GOULD,

ΙΩΔΗΣ—OF ALL REMEDIAL AGENTS, Iodine stands preëminent. The amount of genius, zeal and assiduity which has been devoted to the elucidation of its effects upon the
has not been exceeded in the instance of any other article in Materia Medica, and it is ACKNOWLEDGED
to possess very great powers in the cure of many obstinate diseases, over which other remedies have little or no control.

Iodine was discovered in the year 1812, and received its name from the Greek word which heads this article. It is an elementary body, obtained from seaweed, is very volatile, and has great control over
SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.
It acts upon the HEART,
LIVER, KIDNEYS,
DIGESTIVE ORGANS AND GLANDULAR SYSTEM

Iodine has the power of dissolving mercury and lead, and the presence of organic matter does not prevent these changes. It neutralizes metalic mercury, and all the mercurial compounds that can possibly occur in the living body, by forming a soluble compound, which passes off through the kidneys.

The unparalleled success which has attended the use of Iodine Water in private practice, and the indorsement of
has induced us to recommend IODINE WATER
as a Specific for the cure of the following diseases, viz.:

Scrofula in all its manifold forms, Consumption, Cancer, Bronchitis, Liver, Kidney and Heart Diseases, Billious Fevers, Fever and Ague, Nervous Affections, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Female Weaknesses, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, General Debility, Syphilis in all its various and afflicting stages, and the only remedy for the successful eradication of Mercurial Disease; and, in fact, all those distressing and afflicting maladies which arise from an enfeebled, vitiated state of the blood, defective nutrition, and impure atmosphere, &c.

It is in Scrofulous diseases that the most interesting results have been accomplished by the use of Iodine. We are indebted to the eminent Dr. Lugol, of Paris, for the most extended and valuable researches in the use of Iodine in the different forms of Scrofula. This physician began a systematic course of treatment with this remedy in the St. Louis Hospital, Paris, in 1827. He made known his results in three memoirs, published in 1829, '30, '31, in which he especially recommends the use of the AQUEOUS SOLUTION OF IODINE.

These memoirs give the details of a success, which would stagger the belief, were not the results substantiated by Committees of distinguished physicians of the French Royal Academy of Sciences. The most happy results are also recorded of the treatment of Rheumatism, both chronic and acute, and in Syphilis, where the distress and agony were almost unendurable, the patient has been relieved in an exceedingly short time. Many cases of White Swelling have been cured, and in some where much disorganization had occurred and the loss of a whole limb was apprehended, yet the use of Iodine arrested the destructive process, and the limbs were preserved.

CONSUMPTION
is generally considered as closely allied to Scrofula. In fact, it is often called "Scrofula of the Lungs." In scrofulous families, members, especially children, die from disease in the chest, and reciprocally in families affected with pulmonary tubercles, the children die of scrofulous disease. In common terms, a family is scrofulous when scrofulous diseases cause a greater mortality than pulmonary tubercles; and it is tuberculous when tuberculization of the lungs cuts off a larger number than other scrofulous diseases. These tubercles are a production of the same character, and require the same course of treatment for their successful eradication. It is a well-demonstrated fact that consumption has been and CAN BE CURED when taken in the primary stages, and although it is impossible to cure in its last stage, great alleviation of distress and of oppression in the chest, has resulted from the use of Iodine Water.

We do not claim that Iodine Water will make quick and speedy cures in chronic diseases, which have been making gradual progress in the system, slowly undermining the constitution and organism, but we believe that to successfully eradicate a chronic disease, a chronic system of medication is demanded, and that Iodine Water meets this demand, as its effects are slow, sure and efficacious.

The evidence of the success of this medicine, and the facts enumerated above, we will be pleased to show to any one who will call at our office.

TESTIMONIALS.

Certificate of Dr. James R. Chilton, the Celebrated Chemist, after Analyzing Anders' Iodine Water.

I have analyzed the "Iodine Water" prepared by Dr. Anders, and find it to be a solution of pure Iodine in water. It has long been a desideratum to prepare Iodine so that it can be administered in its uncombined state; this preparation by Dr. Anders enables us to effect that object. Each fluid ounce of the water contains about half a grain of Iodine. I consider it a valuable preparation, and one which will prove serviceable in all those cases where the use of Iodine is indicated.
JAMES R. CHILTON, M. D., Chemist.

Certificate from Prof. James C. Booth, United States Mint, Philadelphia.

DR. HENRY ANDERS: The sample of Iodine Water, tested by me, I find to be Iodine dissolved in pure water.
Respectfully yours, JAMES C. BOOTH.

Certificate of Dr. E. Whitney.

GENTLEMEN: I have examined your pure Iodine Water, and find it a pure solution of Iodine, containing a sufficient quantity for all practical purposes as a remedial agent. I have used it in obstinate cases of scrofula, and can attest its superior value in the treatment of this class of disease. I am fully convinced your solution of Iodine, in pure water, is far preferable to any other form in which it has hitherto been used.
Respectfully yours, E. WHITNEY, M. D.,
No. 402 Fourth-av.

Certificate of Dr. H. Klingstein, of Berlin.

MY DEAR DOCTOR: Not long ago I received your excellent Iodine Water, and I am again obliged to call for another dozen. I find in this short time, in my large practice, opportunity enough to see what a wonderful effect this great remedy exercises upon the afflicted. I have now only one bottle left, as I have used all the rest that you have sent me. I have cured bilious fevers in an astonishly short time; and a case of chorea, of ten years' standing, I have also cured. I feel it a duty to say to you, that I look on you as the inventor of one of the most valuable medicines that we have now in the catalogue of remedies, for really your Iodine Water is the only article of which we can say that the afflicted may avail themselves with a certainty of relief, and an ultimate restoration to perfect health. You have produced, Sir, by your discovery, a new era in the history of medicine. Wherever your new and invaluable preparation becomes known, it must acquire that popularity which such a rare remedial agent truly merits.
I am, respectfully yours,
B. KLINGSTEIN, M. D.

To these may be added the remarks of the American Medical Monthly, edited by EDWARD H. PARKER, A. M., M. D.

IODINE WATER.—Samples of a preparation with this name have been sent to us by Dr. ANDERS, of this city, by whom it is prepared. Chemists generally state that Iodine can be dissolved in water, but that the solution is a very weak one, containing in fact only 1-7000 part of Iodine by weight. Dr. ANDERS states that this is only a simple solution in Croton water, and may be made as strong as three-fourths of a grain to the ounce. The preparation is a decidedly brown fluid, with a strong smell and taste of Iodine. When allowed to stand in an open vessel, the color and taste both disappear, the remainder being simply limpid water. We have seen a copy of the report of an analysis, made by Dr. CHILTON, in which he states that he finds it "to be a solution of pure Iodine in water." It is a question of interest, by no means unworthy of investigation, what may be the therapeutical value of this preparation. If we can in this way introduce pure Iodine into the system, without combination with any other substance, important results may follow. Practitioners should remember this solution when prescribing Iodine.

Other testimonials may be seen at our office.

RAILROAD BONDS FOR SALE.—THE UNdersigned, Trustees of the Dubuque and Sioux City Railroad Company, will receive proposals up to the 17th day of March next, for the whole or any part of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars First Mortgage Seven Per Cent. Twenty-Year Bonds, dated Jan. 1, 1863, secured on the First Division of the Dubuque and Sioux City Railroad, consisting of one hundred miles, from Dubuque to Cedar Falls. These Bonds are issued for the purpose of discharging the floating debt of the Company, and will be its only indebtedness, and the first mortgage lien upon one hundred miles of railroad, completed and in operation. The gross earnings of the road in 1862 were $229,982, and the net earnings were $124,174, with a certain prospect of a largely increasing business. It will, therefore, be seen, that the net earnings are five times as much as will pay the interest, while the amount of Bonds to be issued is only three thousand dollars per mile on a road which has cost about $3,000,000. It is believed that no better seven per cent. Bond is offered in the United States. No bid will be received for less than par. Payment to be made in United States Treasury notes, "Legal Tender," or Bank notes current in the City of New-York. The Bonds will be ready for delivery on the 15th March. Bids to be addressed to the undersigned, care of John Lord, No. 72 Broad-st., New-York, of whom further information can be obtained. Permission is granted to refer to Messrs. Schuchardt & Gebhard, Bankers, No. 21 Nassau-st., New York,—Feb. 19, 1863.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarily valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb, unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians, in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it; and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 800 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Rumors of a Rebel Raid on Hooker's Right.

ANOTHER REBEL PIRATE AT NASSAU

Nominations Not Confirmed by the Senate.

RICH MINES IN ARIZONA.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 15.

A RUMORED REBEL RAID.

Newsmongers are agape to-night with the details of a raid by the rebels, six thousand strong, infantry, artillery and cavalry, to the right and rear of our lines across the United States Ford, commenced last evening, and to induce a battle to-day; while on the contrary we have the best of intelligence that there is no force opposite Falmouth save JACKSON's corps of three divisions, with some small detachments of LONGSTREET's command.

ANOTHER REBEL PIRATE.

The steamer Georgiana, built at Liverpool for the rebels, and pierced and prepared for sixteen guns, has arrived at Nassau. There she will of course receive her armament, if not put in in England, and of her qualities our commerce will probably soon receive the impression.

NOMINATIONS NOT ACTED UPON.

Quite a number of nominations of various kinds (sent in during the Executive Session) were not acted upon. Gens. MORELL, MITCHELL and SCHOFIELD, nominated for Major-Generals, were among these. Also, Gen. PRIME. The President, just before the Senate adjourned, sent in the nomination of CARL SCHURZ to be Major.-General Senator HARRIS objected to it, and would not allow it to be made over the head of his friend, Gen. STAHL. A compromise was effected, by which both received the rank of Major-General. An effort was made to get action upon the brevet promotions in the regular army, but the opposition was so decided that they had to go over until next December. A large number of Chaplains were also laid over, on the ground that their services were not pressingly required.

DISPATCHES FROM ABROAD.

Voluminous dispatches by the last steamer to the State Department show nothing, beyond the comments of the English Press, of the opinion of Secretary SEWARD's rejection of the French offer of mediation.

THE BANKING SYSTEM.

The Treasury Department daily receives evidence of the growing popularity of the new National Banking System, in private letters and official notices of the formation of Associations under the provisions of the act. Already nearly fifty applications have been made—many of them by organized banks—some of them by old banks prominent in the financial world. All the necessary forms and blanks, for business under the act, are in a forward state of preparation, and the whole machinery for putting the Act into effect is nearly ready for Commissioner OLCOTT's arrival.

RECEIPTS FROM INTERNAL REVENUE.

The receipts at the Bureau of Internal Revenue for the week ending March 14, were as follow:

Monday	$438,898 87	Friday	338,251 37
Tuesday	136,753 09	Saturday	137,531 10
Wednesday	157,223 44
Thursday	257,033 52	Total	$1,662,691 37

Increase over previous week, $368,979 77; average receipts per day, $277,115 22.

REVENUE DECISIONS.

The Internal Revenue Department has decided that leather, tanned and removed from the place of manufacture prior to Sept. 1, is not liable to duty when curried or finished. All leather, whether damaged or sound, finished or curried in the interest of the parties who tanned the same, is subject to a duty of one cent per pound on the curried leather; provided, the specific tax had not been previously paid on the tanned leather.

It has also been decided, that whenever a person is the owner of a patent, or of the right to manufacture a patented article, and employs other parties to make such patented article, the patentee or owner of the patent right will be regarded as the manufacturer, and the tax will be assessed upon the sales as made by him or his agents.

Another decision is, that whenever a manufacturer shall use, or shall remove for consumption or use, any articles, goods, wares or merchandise, which, if removed for sale, would be liable to taxation as manufactures, he shall be assessed on the salable value of the articles, goods, wares or merchandise so used, or so removed for consumption or use. It is not necessary, in order to render a manufacturer liable to taxation under this decision, that the articles so removed for consumption or use should be removed from the premises, or even from the building in which they were made.

The Commissioner has also decided that when bonds are issued by a State, county, city or town, in aid of a Railroad Company, whereof interest is to be paid by the Company, a Government tax of three per cent. must be withheld, although neither bond nor coupon may express the liability of the Company—such an arrangement being virtually an indorsement of the Company's bonds by said State, county, city or town. Whether interest is paid by the State, county, city or town, and received from the Railroad Company, or paid by the Company directly to bondholders, is immaterial. In either case, the managers of the Company must account to the Government for the tax. When bonds are issued by or in aid of a Railroad Company, the interest of which is made payable in a foreign country, such interest will not be subject to taxation, under the eighty-first section of the Excise law.

Itinerant vendors of maps in any form, or of books or pamphlets, other than those exempted by the words of the Excise law, must take out licenses as peddlers of the first, second, third or fourth class, as the case may be. The practice of obtaining subscriptions to such books, pamphlets or maps, and of delivering them, and receiving money therefor at the time of the subscription or afterwards, is held to be peddling under the Excise law. Peddlers must obtain licenses of the Collectors of the districts in which said peddlers respectively reside, and, under such license, they can pursue their occupation in any part of the United States not prohibited to them by local law.

REINSTATEMENT OF COL. CESNOLA.

By direction of the President, the order dismissing Col. CESNOLA, Fourth New-York Cavalry, from the service, has been revoked, and the Colonel reinstated in his command, provided the vacancy in his regiment has not been filled.

PAYMASTER REINSTATED.

By direction of the President, additional Paymaster SILAS B. A. HAYNES has been reinstated in the service.

TO BE EXCHANGED.

About twenty rebels, principally Virginians, arrived here on Saturday, from Camp Chase, Ohio. They were sent South for exchange to-day.

Between five and six hundred prisoners of State and war were sent to City Point this morning, to be exchanged.

RESIGNATION.

Col. W. R. MURPHY, of the Tenth New-Jersey Volunteers, has tendered his resignation. It was accepted.

A DESERTER TO BE TRIED.

Prior to the recent raid of the rebels into our lines, the Sixth New-York cavalry were encamped not far from one of the fords above Falmouth. A private in Company A, named O'DONAHUE, becoming unruly and insolent to his officers, was, by command of Capt. CROCKER, tied to a tree. By some means he contrived to unloose the cords which bound him, and, under cover of night, forded the river, entered the rebel lines, and, out of spite for the punishment inflicted upon him, communicated to the enemy the location of the encampment and a plan whereby he thought they could bag the whole of the Sixth Regiment. On crossing the river the next day, STUART's force made immediately for this spot, but to their disgust found that the regiment had abandoned it for some other location. O'DONAHUE was paroled and sent to this city. While under the effects of liquor recently, he boasted in the presence of some companions how he had procured his parole and "sold" his regiment. He was immediately arrested, sent back to the army, and is now being tried for desertion. An officer of the regiment informs me that Gen. HOOKER has said that he shall be shot without fail if convicted.

NAVAL.

Lieut.-Commander FRANCIS A. ROWE has been ordered on ordnance duty at New-York.

THE SIGNAL CORPS.

The officers of the Signal Corps, with a splendid band, recently serenaded Senator LANE of Indiana at his lodgings. This corps is much indebted to the energy of that Senator for the passage by Congress of the act providing for its reorganization.

SANITARY CONDITION OF THE ARMY.

The records at the Medical Department show that the health of the army is better now than at any period since its organization. Although the numerical strength of the army has been nearly doubled since July, 1862, the number of deaths and amount of sickness is considerably less than before the augmentation took place.

SICK IN HOSPITAL.

The number of sick and wounded soldiers in the hospitals, in and around Washington, is about eight thousand.

THE CONDUCT OF THE WAR.

Letter from Gen. Halleck to Gen. Rosecrans on the Treatment of Disloyal Persons Within our Lines.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, March 15.

The following letter, dated Headquarters of the Army, Washington, D. C., March 5, 1863, has been addressed by Maj.-Gen. HALLECK to Maj.-Gen. W. S. ROSECRANS, Murfreesboro, Tenn.:

GENERAL: I have just received Major-Gen. REYNOLDS' letter of Feb. 10, with your indorsement of Feb. 18. The suggestions of Gen. REYNOLDS and Gen. THOMAS with regard to a more rigid treatment of disloyal persons within the lines of your army are approved. No additional instructions from these headquarters are deemed necessary.

You have already been urged to procure your subsistence, forage and means of transportation, so far as possible, in the country occupied. This you had a right to do without any instructions. As the Commanding General in the field, you have the right to enforce all the laws and usages of war, however rigid and severe these may be, unless there be some act of Congress, regulation, order or instruction forbidding or restricting such enforcement. As a general rule, you must always be the judge when it is best to rigidly apply these laws, and when a more lenient course would be of greater advantage to our cause.

Distinctions, however, should always be made in regard to the character of the people in the district of country which is militarily occupied or passed over. The people of the country in which you are likely to operate, may be divided into three classes:

First—The truly loyal, who neither aid nor assist the rebels, except under compulsion, but who favor or assist the Union troops. When it can possibly be avoided; this class of persons should not be subjected to military requisitions, but should receive the protection of our arms. It may, however, be necessary sometimes to take their property, either for our own use, or to prevent its falling into the hands of the enemy. They will be paid, at the time, the value of such property, or, if that be impracticable, they will hereafter be fully indemnified. Receipts should be given for all property so taken without being paid for.

Second—Those who take no part in the war, but belong to the class known as military non-combatants. In a civil war like that now waged, this class is supposed to sympathize with the rebellion rather than with the Government. There can be no such thing as neutrality in a rebellion. This term is applicable only to foreign Powers. Such persons, so long as they commit no hostile act and confine themselves to their private avocations, are not to be molested by the military forces, nor is their property to be seized, except as a military necessity. They, however, are subject to forced loans and military requisitions, and their houses to billets for soldiers' quarters, and to appropriation for other temporary military uses. Subject to these impositions, the non-combatant inhabitants of a district militarily occupied by one of the belligerents, are entitled to the military protection of the occupying forces. But while entitled to such protection they incur very serious obligations—obligations differing in some respects from those of civil allegiance, but equally binding. For example, those who rise in arms against the occupying army, or against the authority established by the same, are war rebels, or military traitors, and incur the penalty of death. They are not entitled to be considered as prisoners of war, when captured. Their property is subject to military seizure and military confiscation. Military treason of this kind is broadly distinguished from the treason defined in constitutional and statutory laws, and made punishable by the civil courts. Military treason is a military offence punishable by the common law of war. Again, persons belonging to such occupied territory and within the military lines of the occupying forces, can give no information to the enemy of the occupying power without proper authority. To do so, the party forfeits not only all claim to protection, but subjects himself or herself to be punished either as a spy or military traitor, according to the character of the particular offence. Our treatment of such offences and such offenders has hitherto been altogether too lenient. A more strict enforcement of laws of war in this respect is recommended. Such offenders should be made to understand the penalties they incur, and to know that these penalties will be rigidly enforced.

Third—Those who are openly and avowedly hostile to the occupying army, but who do not bear arms against such forces—in other words, while claiming to be non-combatants—they repudiate obligations tacitly or impliedly incurred by the other inhabitants of the occupied territory. Such persons not only incur all the obligations imposed upon the other non-combatant inhabitants of the same territory, and are liable to the same punishments for offences committed; but they may be treated as prisoners of war, and be subjected to the rigors of confinement, or to expulsion as combatant enemies. I am of the opinion that such persons should not, as a general rule, be permitted to go at large within our lines. To force those capable of bearing arms to go within the lines of the enemy, adds to his effective forces. To place them in confinement will require guards, and necessarily diminish ours. You will determine in each particular case which course will be most advantageous. We have suffered very severely from this class, and it is time the laws of war should be more vigorously enforced against them. A broad line of distinction must be drawn between friends and enemies, loyal and disloyal.

The foregoing remarks have reference only to the military status and to military offences under the laws of war. They are not applicable to civil offences, under the Constitution and general laws of the land. The laws and usages of civilized war must be your guide in the treatment of all classes of persons in the country in which your army may operate, or which it may occupy. And you will be permitted to decide for yourself where it is best to act with vigor, and when best to be more lenient. You will not be trammeled with minute instructions.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
(Signed) H. W. HALLECK,
General-in-Chief.

The Case of Gen. Stoughton—Note from E. W. Stoughton, Esq.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, March 14, 1863.

HON. H. J. RAYMOND—Dear Sir: Your paper of this morning contains a communication purporting to have been written in some part of the State of Vermont, by a person pretending to have received a letter from Fairfax Court-house, predicting the capture of Gen. STOUGHTON, and containing statements prejudicial to his character. The author of this communication gives what he calls an extract from the letter. Whether such a letter was ever written, is questionable; but however this may be, the extract referred to is, in all substantial respects, false.

From reliable sources I have gathered the following information:

The headquarters of Gen. STOUGHTON were, with the knowledge and assent of his superior—Gen. CASEY—fixed at Fairfax Court-House. There, or in that immediate vicinity, he had, when captured, two regiments, one of cavalry, the other of infantry. The remainder, and bulk of his brigade, was about three miles distant. At the time of his capture, his mother and sister were visiting him—the latter having been there about two weeks. They, with three of his aids, had apartments in and slept at the house of a Mr. FORD—a member of whose family is so indecently mentioned in the so-called extract. The General's quarters were about a block distant. There he slept, as did also one of his aids; and there he, with his mother and sister, and all of his aids, took their meals.

This Mr. FORD and his family were highly respected in the neighborhood; although, it is probable, that like most of the residents there, they were unfriendly to the Union cause. I have information which leads me to believe that Gen. STOUGHTON had no acquaintance whatever with either of the female members of Mr. FORD's family. He, of course, believed them respectable, or he would not have placed his mother and sister under their roof.

These facts sufficiently dispose of the unfounded statements and malicious insinuations contained in the communication referred to. I do not know its author's name or residence, and I probably never shall. If you can furnish them to me, I shall take pleasure in sending my check to your order for $250, (two hundred and fifty dollars,) to be applied by you for the benefit of the New-England Soldiers' Relief Association, under the charge of Col. HOWE, of this city, or to any other benevolent purpose in which you may feel an interest.

Gen. STOUGHTON is now a captive in the hands of our common enemy. He is my brother's son, and I do not like to see his reputation assailed whilst he is unable to defend it. At the breaking out of the rebellion he left my office, where he was studying law, to take the command of the Fourth Vermont Regiment. He had graduated at West Point after a five years' course, but as he was supposed to differ in political views from the majority of citizens in that State, many zealous politicians of narrow views, to which class the writer of the article in question probably belongs, violently opposed his appointment as Colonel, upon the ground that such commissions should go to political partizans. He was appointed, however, and led his regiment through all the battles and dangers of the Peninsula. It was thought he deserved promotion, and hence he was nominated as a Brigadier-General. At the time of his capture this nomination was pending before the Senate, and this communication was well calculated to prevent his confirmation.

The full particulars of his unfortunate capture are yet to be revealed. When all are developed, I believe he will stand justified. He understood his profession well, was a rigid disciplinarian, and not likely to neglect usual military precautions. His pickets and outposts, upon which every officer is compelled to rely, were surprised and captured. This may have been the work of treachery—it may have resulted from other causes—but, I venture to say, not from want of vigilance on his part. Yours truly,

E. W. STOUGHTON.

A Note from George D. Prentice—Reply to a Slander.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, March 14, 1863.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In several papers I find a telegraphic dispatch from Nashville, purporting to give an explanation of the reason why I am on my way to Europe.

I have a boy, who—God forgive him—is a Colonel or Major in the rebel army. He was badly wounded in the battle of Murfreesboro, and was reported dangerously so, but he was not taken prisoner. His mother hastened to Nashville, and was kindly permitted to pass both lines, the rebels being, no doubt, unwilling to refuse to one of their own gallant and sorely wounded officers the advantages of a mother's ministrations. When she returned, she brought me a brief, and, of course, unsealed letter from our son. The author of the Nashville dispatch thinks that, in all probability, the young man apprized me of a projected rebel invasion of Kentucky, and that I set out for Europe some weeks afterward in consequence of the information thus obtained. Now, when I state, as I here do emphatically, that I have at no time had the slightest thought of going to Europe, and that I left home on important family business, and shall be again at my post after less than three weeks' absence from it, the public can properly appreciate the character of the dispatch, if not of its author.

I scorn such flippant and apparently malignant calumnies upon myself and my family. I do not know what there has been in my public course to indicate that I would withhold from the friends of the Union, for even a single day or hour, any information I might have of a contemplated irruption of the rebels into Kentucky, or any other State, or that, if I were to leave home on account of apprehended danger, I should be so frightened as to fly all the way across the Atlantic Ocean, instead of stopping at some less remote point of safety. If at any time the rebels shall attempt to take Louisville, when there are troops there to defend it, I will aid in the defence. If there be no chance of any defence, I will go somewhere else, but even then, I trust I shall stop this side of the end of the world.

I would not be a boaster, but I will say that if I were to be slandered only by those who have labored for the glorious cause of the Union as devotedly, and in defiance of as great temptations and dangers as I have, I should be likely to pass unscathed.

Very respectfully,
GEO. D. PRENTICE.

A Specimen of English Modesty.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In the early part of this rebellion, an "F. F. V," in arms against the Government, near Fortress Monroe, applied to have a contraband returned under the Fugitive Slave Law. I was desirous of seeing that genuine specimen of unaffected Southern modesty, and hoped that it might have taken place ere this, but the regret for the delay is diminished after reading a specimen furnished by our neutral neighbor John Bull.

The Illustrated News of Feb. 28 says, speaking of their sketches made in rebeldom, that they "have from time to time fallen into the hands of the Federals, and figure in the New-York illustrated journals, and the question naturally arises—might they not as well have been handed over to their owners for publication."

Perhaps the Government would be induced to break up the blockade to oblige the editor, on proper application.

Meeting of Methodist Laymen.

An invitation is circulated, signed by a number of the most influential lay members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in this City and vicinity, for a meeting to be held in John-street Church to-day at 3 P. M., "for the purpose of giving the friends of lay representatives in the M. E. Church an opportunity for consultation and comparison of views." The circular further says: "It is the judgment of many that the times call for the adoption of some measures to further this good and beneficent movement. Our brethren in Philadelphia having issued a call for a Convention of laymen, it is proper that the Methodists of New-York should make some appropriate response." From what we read and hear, we judge that the object aimed at by this meeting is attracting increased attention in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and that this meeting on Monday will be very largely attended. The circular announces that Bishop SIMPSON, who is understood warmly to favor the movement, and Gov. WRIGHT, of Indiana, will be present. The call is signed by a class of gentlemen who exert a wide and beneficial influence in the church of which they are members and ornaments.

AMUSEMENTS.

The combined advantages of fine weather and public enthusiasm, exercised a desirable influence over Mr. MARETZEK's fortunes last week. Three evening performances and a matinée were given, the last a brilliant affair on Saturday, that attracted an overflowing representation of our New-York fair ones, and was in all respects eminently successful. The opera performed was "Ernani"—one of the most pronounced of VERDI's works, and well calculated to show off the strength of the company. We have already referred to its production, and need only say, that its repetition was free from the usual negligencies and omissions that characterize matinée performances. The artists were in superb voice, and combining suitable, and frequently powerful, action with their vocal vehemencies, brought down the house with legitimate bursts of applause. It is conceded now on all sides, that Mr. MARETZEK's troupe is the best we have had here for many years. The plan of the campaign, both as regards these leading artists and the important auxiliaries of orchestra and chorus, is on the largest scale. When it is remembered that, notwithstanding the increased expenses of the establishment, the prices remain at the lowest standard, it will be seen that the most genial support of the public is needed to make the experiment only moderately successful. The enthusiasm that prevails seems to promise the happiest results to the energetic impresairo. It will not be lessened by an entire change in the programme of the present week. So far we have had nothing but VERDI; the present week—opening with "Norma" to-night—is devoted to BELLINI. Mme. MEDORI appears as the Druidess, a rôle in which she has excited the raptures of critical audiences, and Signor MAZZOLINI has consented to sing the rather unimportant music of Pollio. The caste in other respects includes the principal artists of the troupe, and the orchestra will be under the able direction of Mr. MARETZEK.

The fourth concert of the Philharmonic Society, given on Saturday night, was one of the most agreeable of the season, and this notwithstanding an important change in the programme, arising from the sudden and severe indisposition of Mr. V. A. SAAR, who was to have been the solo pianist of the occasion in MOZART's "Jupiter" Symphony—a work full of frank impulses and unstrained erudition; a work, indeed, that shows grandly the knowledge and nature of the composer, and illustrates that the highest flights of genius need not of necessity be tedious. It may be added, however, that to ears accustomed to the vivid coloring of the modern orchestra, the many repeats in this work are a little superfluous. The themes are so clear that they can be caught readily at a single hearing; hence it is unnecessary, by reiteration, to enforce them on the ear. The Symphony was played admirably by the orchestra, especially the magnificent figure in the last movement. In the second part of the programme there were two instrumental morceaux, both heavy enough to outweigh poor MOZART, but distinctly failing to do so. The first of these, WAGNER's overture characteristique to "Faust," is a stormy, boisterous, and overwhelming production, in which the listener gets tossed about, and has his bulwarks stove in, and both paddle-wheels carried away, and would fain take to the boats if it were in his power to do so. It is labeled with a motto from GOETHE's "Faust," expressive of the hero's abhorrence of life, and ardent desire for death, but regret and dissolution are alike noisy affairs with WAGNER. The only merit of the work is found in its broad and showy mechanism. ROBERT SCHUMANN's very effective Overture, Scherzo and Finale in E, op. 52, concluded the evening's entertainment. Like the preceding piece, it was excellently played, but, unlike it, it gave satisfaction to the entire audience. The intellectual chafings of RICHARD WAGNER in search of an idea, are only cheerful to a few. Mr. J. E. PERRING, the well-known tenor, was the vocalist of the evening, and acquitted himself in a thoroughly musician-like way. It is a pity that we do not hear this gentleman more frequently in the concert room. In consequence of Mr. SAAR's indisposition, a substitute had to be provided. The directors had the extraordinary good luck to secure the services of Mlle. CAMILLE URSO, the celebrated violiniste, who volunteered, at a moment's notice, to play the Andante and Rondo-Russe from the second concerto by DE BERIOT; and VIEUXTEMPS' Fantaisie—Caprice in A, op. 11. It is many years since this lady appeared before our public; the interval having been passed, as we are informed, in purely domestic pursuits. It is now our pleasant duty to welcome her back to the world of art, and to state that she has vastly improved since we last had the pleasnre of hearing her. The Philharmonic audience—not excluding the musicians on the platform—were astonished to hear an artiste of such first-class ability, and a perfect ovation was, in consequence, awarded to her. Mlle. URSO phrases with remakable elegance, and in some instances with even masculine vigor; her technical command of the instrument is equal to any emergency; her tone is large, clear, and absolutely just; her manner quiet, lady-like and subdued. These traits were so amply illustrated on Saturday, that the greatest excitement prevailed, and a success of the best kind was obtained.

Several important changes will be made at the various theatres to-night, the most noticeable being at LAURA KEENE's, where Mrs. JOHN WOOD, having taken a final farewell of the "Greenbacks," and parted with her giant, retires into private life, and gives place to the fair lessee of the establishment. It is announced—we hope with some evasion of the strict fiat of necessity—that this will be Miss KEENE's farewell engagement. The stage can ill afford to lose so admirable an actress, or the City to part with a manager of such enterprise and taste. The regret excited by the announcement will, we are sure, be enhanced by the series of performances with which Miss KEENE terminates her management of the present establishment. To-night, the comedy of "Old Heads and Young Hearts," with the following fine distribution: Jesse Rural, Mr. BLAKE; Tom Coke, Mr. CHARLES WHEATLEIGH; Lyttleton Coke, Mr. C. WALCOT, Jr.; Roebuck, Mr. LEVICK; Col. Rocket, Mr. STODDART; Bob, Mr. PETERS; Lady Alice, Miss KEENE; Kate Rocket, Miss IONE BURKE; Countess, Mrs. ROBERTSON.

At Niblo's Garden the operatic spectacle of "Satanella" will be withdrawn, and the "Enchantress," which introduced Miss RICHINGS so successfully to our public last year, will again take its place on the bills. There is no doubt that the work will be revived in the best possible manner, and that all the resources of Mr. WHEATLEY's prodigal establishment will be used on the occasion.

At Wallack's Theatre a most deserving and remarkable artist—Mr. GEORGE HOLLAND—will take his benefit to-night, COLEMAN's comedy of the "Poor Gentleman" being revived for the occasion. The name of HOLLAND is as "familiar in our mouths as household words." There are men with grizzly beards and women with grand children who laughed their first hearty laugh beneath the jovial spell of his humorous art. Since then he has expanded in various directions, and although still one of the best of low comedians, can claim a foremost place among the delineators of eccentric character. It will be rank ingratitude and boorish inhospitality on the part of the public if the theatre is not crowded to its greatest capacity to-night. Nothing—not even a snow-storm—can justify the slightest neglect of so old and worthy a servant of the public.

At the Winter Garden Miss MARY PROVOST appears this evening as Margaret Elmore, in "Love's Sacrifice." The engagement of this lady terminates on Wednesday, when she is to be the recipient of a grand complimentary benefit.

At Barnum's Museum, in addition to Little MINNIE WARREN, the hero drummer-boy, the Arab gymnasts, and the other curiosities of the establishment, will be produced to-day a new military drama called the "Roll of the Drum."

Various members of poor ALBERT MARETZEK's Santiago Opera troupe have returned to the City—mostly the worse for wear. Mr. CARL BERGMANN, the musical director thereof, occupied his desk in the Philharmonic orchestra on Saturday night, and will conduct the next concert (and last) of the Society on the 25th of April.

Messrs. MASON and THOMAS gave their fourth Soirée of Chamber music at Dodworth's Hall, on Tuesday last. The programme was as follows: Quartette in F major, No. 8, by MOZART; Trio in B flat major, opus 99, by SCHUBERT, and the Quartette in C major, opus 59, No. 9, by BEETHOVEN. There is a wide scope of method and manner in this bill of fare, and an ample illustration of the best traits of three of the greatest composers of Chamber music. The technical execution by the party was faultless.

Miss CARLOTTA PATTI—who took her departure for Europe on Wednesday—was the recipient of a grand complimentary concert on the previous evening. Irving Hall presented an unusually gay and fashionable appearance, and was rendered even festive by certain ceremonies in honor of the cantatrice. Mr. GOTTSCHALK, Mr. WM. CASTLE, Mr. J. R. THOMAS, Mr. J. N. PATTISON, Mr. THEODORE THOMAS and Signor ABELLA were the artists who assisted on the occasion.

Mr. HARRISON, the liberal and enterprising proprietor of Irving Hall, is arranging a grand musical festival of six days' duration, to take place at his establishment during Easter week. All the artists in the City, headed by Mr. GOTTSCHALK, will take part in the various programmes.

Mr. SETCHELL, a low comedian of high merit, will commence a brief engagement at the Winter Garden on Thursday evening. The gentleman will be remembered as a budding artist of Mr. BURTON's company. He is now in full bloom.

Mr. ROBERT GOLDBECK, one of the few creative musicians in our midst, will give a grand orchestral concert at Irving Hall on Saturday evening next, on which occasion a new symphony, embodying the ideas of peace, struggle and triumph, and called "Victoria," will be produced for the first time. The performance, which also contains Mr. GOLDBECK's "Deux Morceaux Symphoniques," for orchestra and piano, will be interpreted by an orchestra of sixty players, the male chorus of tha German Liedercranz, by Messrs. and S. B. MILLS, WM. MASON and THEODORE THOMAS, as soloists.

Mr. CHURCH's new picture of Cotopaxi, will be on exhibition to-day and hereafter at GOUPIL's.

Arrivals in the City.

Owing to the lateness of the hour, the arrival in this City of Secretaries Chase and Welles on Friday evening was known to but very few persons. Their movements on Saturday were also marked with extreme quietness. They are stopping at the Fifth-avenue Hotel.

M. B. de Moncada, Spanish Consul to the United States, for the port of Charleston, arrived in this city from that place on Saturday evening, per the Spanish steam frigate Carmen. He is now stopping at the Clarendon Hotel.

Hon. Andy Johnson, Military Governor of Tennessee; Hon. J. A. Wright, Major. S. D. Farnsworth, U. S. Army, and Capt. Curtiss, from Hilton Head, S. C., are at the Astor House.

Gen. O. O. Niven, Monticello; Gen. A. J. Hamilton, of Texas; A. M. Starr, of Oregon, and Hon. B. T. Harring, are at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Gen. Naglee, U. S. A.; Hon. Chauncey Vibbard, Albany; Ex-Mayor G. H. Thatcher, of Albany, and Thos. J. Boynter, Key West, are at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

Gen. Divens, U. S. Vols.; Mrs. S. Hooper and family, Boston; Capt. S. O. Cook, S. S. Amsterdam, and J. W. Bigelow, Boston, are at the Brevoort House.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

UNION MEETING AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—A meeting of the loyal citizens of Brooklyn, under the auspices of the War Fund Committee, will be held at the Academy of Music this evening for the purpose of reaffirming a determination to encourage and sustain the Government in its efforts to quell the rebellion, and at all hazards of life and property to maintain and perpetuate the Constitution and the Union. Hon. ANDREW JOHNSON, of Tennessee; Hon. J. WRIGHT, of Indiana; Hon. JAS. T. BRADY, Hon. JOHN VAN BUREN, and other prominent men have been invited to address the meeting.

AN ENVELOPE FACTORY DESTROYED BY FIRE.—A fire broke out in a three-story brick building, situated in Gates, near Bedford-avenue, about 8 o'clock on Saturday night. It was occupied by Mr. WILLIAM TAYLOR, as a letter-envelope manufactory. There was a large amount of stock on hand, which, together with the machinery, was nearly all destroyed by fire, or made useless by the flow of water from the engines. The two upper stories were completely burned out. The building is valued at about $4,000, and the contents at about $8,000, upon which there is an insurance of $5,000 in the Phenix, of Brooklyn, People's and Everett Companies, of New-York. It is not known how the fire originated, but it is supposed to have been the result of accident.

SKATING.—There was excellent skating on Saturday, upon the Capitoline, Nassau, Willow, and in fact nearly all the ponds, and thousands of persons availed themselves of the opportunity of enjoying themselves once more before warm weather sets in. The public ponds were well patronized yesterday, the pay ponds mostly being closed.

WHAT IS YOUR PRICE?—It has been said that all men have their price, and that, under certain degrees of pressure, all will yield to the common temptations of life—some more readily to money; others to appetite; some to ambition; and others to love. But, while we admit that all men—and women, too—do go astray, more or less, we claim that there is a marked difference in individuals. While one would as soon loose a limb as tell a lie, another has no compunction in the matter. While one treads upon the necks—rights—of men in reaching after worldly honors and fame, another, perhaps more intelligent and capable, remains in obscurity, on account of his modesty and diffidence. One is by nature a coward, the other a patriot. One selfish, the other generous. One inventive and mechanical, the other a bunglar. One musical and poetical, the other neither. One loving, the other cool and indifferent. It is the aim of the Phrenologist simply to point out to each individual, first where he stands in comparison with others, what are his temptations, and how to guard against them. Messrs. FOWLER & WELLS, No. 308 Broadway, devote themselves to the study and practice of Phrenology.
